Sewickley Sportswoman Robbed

$7,000 THEFT LAID TO GIRL 'RAFFLES'

Mrs. Lewis A. Park Loses Gems at Horse Show

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—A feminine Raffles was sought today following the theft of two diamond rings valued at $7,000 from Mrs. Lewis A. Park, of Sewickley, Pa., nationally-known sportswoman, at the Bryn Mawr horse show.

The theft occurred Thursday, police said, when Mrs. Park left the rings in a washroom of the show grounds. She is an exhibitor at the famous show.

Mrs. Park is a guest at the home of Mrs. John Roberts Maxwell at Selkirk, Villanova. She has offered a reward of $500 for return of the gems.

Mrs. Lewis A. Park reported to have lost valuable gems at the Bryn Mawr horse show, is a member of the exclusive society set of Sewickley Heights and Pittsburgh. Her husband is owner of the Park Building and scion of a pioneer family that made millions in the steel industry.

WALKER RACES FOR HOME

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 1.—(INS.)—Abandoning hope of the liner Rex being repaired in time, former Mayor James J. Walker today began a dramatic dash across Europe to catch another ship for New York.

Growing more impatient by the minute while engineers attempted to eliminate the dynamo trouble which beset the new Italian liner on her maiden voyage, Walker finally disembarked from the craft and chartered an automobile.

He planned to drive as far as Malaga, the first important city across the Spanish frontier. From there he will proceed to Madrid, and thence to Paris, probably by train, although it was reported he might attempt to charter an airplane to speed up the journey.

Before he left, Walker told International News Service his bid for re-election to the mayoralty was in the hands of the New York courts.

Patent Rail Wins City Award

Despite protest, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang today awarded the contract for the purchase of fleet of Hunter safety rail for West Carson street improvements to the Fort Pitt Malleable Company at its bid of $

The Fort Pitt Company was the second low bidder on the specified Hunter railing. A third bidder submitted by the Steel Car Company was the Hunter Steel Company. The Hunter Company offered its patented product at $10 per lineal foot.

The Pressed Steel Car Company is expected to take court action to restrain the city from carrying out the contract.

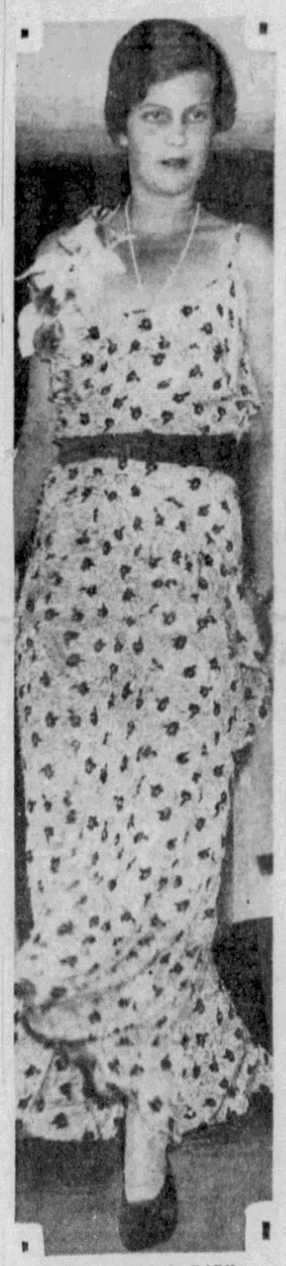
Rings Stolen



MRS. LEWIS A. PARK

Mrs. Park, Sewickley socialite and nationally known sportswoman, whose two diamond rings, valued at $7,000, vanished in a washroom at the fashionable Bryn Mawr horse show. Police hunt a female "Raffles." Mrs. Park offers a $500 reward.

2 BANDITS ROB STREET CAR

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 1.—A Pittsburgh-Washington street car was held up early today at Thompsonville, near here, by two bandits, who escaped with between $25 and $30, Rufus Fear, the motorman, reported to police.

One of the bandits boarded the street car in Washington. His accomplice followed in an automobile, in which the two men escaped.

MILLS RECALL 6,000 HERE TO JOBS

Tin Plate and Steel Plants Re-Employ Many Workers

Happiness filled thousands of homes in Western Pennsylvania today as jobs were provided for almost 6,000 persons after months of idleness.

The Standard Tin Plate Company at Canonsburg will resume operations at midnight Sunday, giving employment to 1,825 men. At the same time, its subsidiary, the Continental Can Company, will resume operations with 210 employes.

POTTERIES RESUME

Busy periods are seen by the Fort Pitt Bridge Company, of Canonsburg. Two potteries at present are working at almost full strength, taking care of increased seasonal demands.

Work will be divided among present employes when operations are resumed Monday in No. 2 unit of No. 1 plant, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, at Creighton, it was announced today at the company offices. The plant has been shut down for two months.

The National Works of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company at Monessen will reopen Monday on a three to four-day-a-week basis, re-employing 1,200 men and girls. Other departments of the mill scheduled to resume operations in about 10 days will give work to 1,200 more employes.

RECALL RAIL WORKERS

The Union Railroad Company has recalled 150 men to start work October 10 at its car repair shop at Monongahela Junction, near Duquesne. The shops are reopening on a two-day-a-week basis.

Several hundred men, including 400 laborers, went back to work this week in the Lockhart Iron and Steel Company in the Chartiers Valley when that company reopened four mills.

Four hundred men have been recalled by the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad to locomotive and car shops to recondition engines and freight cars. Work for several months has been assured 400 men in the freight repair shops called back several days ago.

Workmen Kneel In Prayer as Plant Resumes

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Husky workmen knelt while a child led them in a prayer of thanksgiving today before she applied the torch which renews operations at a Dunbar glass plant.

With bowed heads, they followed the words lisped by Lulu Mancini, 12:

"We thank God for His goodness in presenting such a means of relief and we pray Him to cause continuance or orders which will provide long production."

Dunbar has been hard hit, but the plant of the Pennsylvania Wire Glass Company will resume October 17, and 150 men will have jobs.

Police Battle Crowd; Root Duels Pipgras In Series Crisis

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—A force of 550 policemen was required to restrain a crowd of 5,000 men, women and children who stormed the bleacher gates at Wrigley Field today many hours before the third game of the world series between the Yankees and Cubs. The line of waiting fans reached almost around the walls of the field when the bleacher ticket windows were opened.

Still reeling a little under their burden of sorrow, but not yet convinced that all is indeed lost, more than 50,000 natives will move in upon and take possession of Wrigley Field this afternoon, this being a town of marked civic enthusiasms.

They put pride of town on a pedestal, they cheer loudly at the slightest provocation. They even paraded the Chicago Cubs some days ago, but that was before the National League entry had lost two straight to the Yankees in New York and, besides, it may be recalled that the condemned man at Sing Sing is always paraded just before the end. I wouldn't wish to suggest a connection between the respective formalities there and here, but the coincidence is interesting.

CUBS' HANDICAP

It is essentially so because the Cubs, having lost two out of a possible two on the eastern front must now win four out of an improbable five to emerge triumphant, as we say down at the hitching post. Not an impossible proceeding but one fraught, as we say down at the servants' entrance, with acute improbabilities.

However, as we say down at the livery stable, the change of venue to the kindlier, more sympathetic

SENATOR ILL BUT WILL TESTIFY AT TRIAL

Confident He'll Win Acquittal in Lottery Case

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—U. S. Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, Director General of the Loyal Order of Moose, will take the witness stand in his own defense at his "lottery" trial, it was learned by International News Service today.

Although Chief Defense Counsel Charles J. Margiotti, of Punxsutawney and Pittsburgh, Pa., declined to comment on the matter, it was learned from another source that the former Secretary of Labor will be called to the stand early next week.

DECISION ON TESTIMONY

The decision to have Senator Davis testify in his own behalf was reached after a conference among Davis and his attorneys.

Although Davis has been ill for several days, he has not revealed his physical indisposition in court and insisted to his lawyers that he was well enough to be called to testify.

The former cabinet member feels confident that when he takes the stand he can clear himself of the charge that he violated the federal lottery laws.

The distinguished defendant probably will not be called until Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

When the trial is resumed on Monday, Joseph Jenkins, former secretary to Davis, will be recalled as a witness by the defense. Through his testimony, the defense is attempting to show that Davis had no connection with the Moose "organization department" when the 1930 and 1931 charity balls, alleged lotteries were held.

ORAL AGREEMENT

Jenkins has testified that he and Fred W. Jones, financial agent for Davis, through an oral agreement in August, 1930, at Sharon, Pa., purchased the contract for organizing the Moose from Davis for $600,000.

The government's charges that Davis profited through the alleged lotteries is based upon checks traced to the organization department from the propagation department, which promoted the charity balls.

The prosecution alleges that Davis still holds the organization contract and that Jenkins and Jones are "dummies" for the defendant.

Jenkins, in explaining one financial transaction under government fire, termed Senator Davis "an extraordinary man—Plus."

Addressing Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman, the witness stated:

"He is not like you and I. He is an extraordinary man."

CHICAGO GREETS ROOSEVELT'S RETURN WITH OVATION

GERMAK STAGES TORCHLIGHT PARADE

Nominee Told He Will Sweep Illinois; Speaks Tonight

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt came back today to the scene of his ...ential nomination and re-...d an ovation which ex-...ed that which he was ac-...ed here two months ago.

Nearly half a million people jammed the streets here last night and gave the Democratic nominee a noisy and colorful reception when he reached here on the last lap of his 9,000-mile swing about the country.

The Chicago city organization, headed by Mayor "Tony" Cermak, which was not for Gov. Roosevelt in the Democratic National Convention here two months ago, gave a spectacular demonstration in his support. There was an old-fashioned torch-light parade of the city, much red fire, and seemingly much enthusiasm. Mayor Cermak himself went to Milwaukee to escore Gov. Roosevelt into the city.

STATE DECLARED SAFE

Gov. Roosevelt was told by Mayor Cermak and other Democratic leaders with whom he conferred during the morning that there is no doubt about his carrying Illinois this year. Illinois is important in the Democratic scheme of things this year and the news was gratifying to the Roosevelt managers.

Gov. Roosevelt tonight will address the Illinois Democracy at a banquet. This will follow his appearance at the third game of the world series this afternoon. Later he will leave Chicago for Detroit and the East.

As Gov. Roosevelt approaches the East again from his invasion of the West he is showing increasing concern about the Democratic situation in New York.

STRONG FOR LEHMAN

He is anxious that his friend and political supporter, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, shall be nominated to succeed him in the governorship. To that end, Gov. Roosevelt has been in almost constant telephonic communication with New York at every stop during the past few days.

Gov. Roosevelt came into Chicago well satisfied with the results of this three weeks' campaigning through the West.

He and his advisers believe he has captured the support of the agrarian states where economic discontent and political discontent is most acute.

HOOVER TO TALK IN DES MOINES

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Elaborate preparations have been made for the reception of President Hoover in Des Moines Tuesday, on ... occasion of his first out-of-... campaign address.

A battalion of infantry and three squadrons of cavalry will be on hand at the station when the presidential train pulls in to act as a guard of honor over the route to the Governor's mansion, where Mr. Hoover will rest and dine in advance of his speech. This imposing military array will wait from the time of his arrival there until the President is due to speak, and then escort him to the Coliseum. Finally, the honor guard will convoy him to his train for the return journey to Washington.

A large audience has been assured the Executive as a result of the seating arrangements. Each Republican district leader has been allotted 100 tickets and made responsible for their distribution. The overflow will assemble in Shrine Temple and hear the speech by loud speaker.

CUBS SEND ROOT AGAINST YANKS

atmosphere of the home town may inspire the Cubs no end. A phophet may be without honor in his own town but the ball player doesn't live who fails to react more favorably to the combined plaudit over the combined bird-call of the Bronx.

The Cubs, in fact, came home to a warming welcome yesterday. 5,000 people crowding the station to shout encouragement, even if inaudible, and to shake hands, even if only their own. If this didn't hearten the Cubs, they ought to get some comfort from the fact that they have a pretty impressive pitcher coming up this afternoon in Charley Root.

"WHITE SHIRT MENACE"

They might even be consoled by the prospect of a warm, clear day and, in consequence, the return of the "white shirt menace" which rises up in the centerfield bleachers on warm, clear days, giving lefthand hitters the alternative of hitting the ball or a shirt front. They often come closer to the shirt front.

Root, a side-arm righthander, doesn't figure to be without a certain craft and guile under those circumstances, but neither does George Pipgras, another righthander, who will be the Yankee pitcher today, according to a message Joe McCarthy confided to friends on his arrival here.

Mr. McCarthy was shown to the city limits here two years ago and told never to darken its doors again. However, he has gone right ahead and darkened doors, here and there, and is now coming back to darken Wrigley Field for the first time, where he still has more friends than the cigaret girl in a night club.

Anyhow, he said that Pipgras would pitch today and Johnny Allen tomorrow, Johnny being the young man who was well known to Mr. and Mrs. Allen at this time last year and is now well known to all. In any case, Root gets a break over either Yankee pitcher, the difference being that they will pitch to only one left-hand hitter. Grimm; whereas, it may be that Root can work his will on such as Combs, Sewell, Ruth, Gehrig and Dickey. That, anyhow, is the local illusion. The substance may reveal that Root had nothing but a petition and the Yanks everything but a brick.

That's the way it has been so far, and there is not a great deal in the evidence to indicate that any abrupt change is about to take place. Yet Chicago is a little diffident about holding its own, and so the stands today will rock under the burden of a near-capacity crowd, including some of our foremost figures and some, no doubt, with practically no figure at all.

Among the former will be Franklin D. Roosevelt, the presidential nominee, who will occupy a field box with Mayor Cermak.

COX TO VISIT HOLLYWOOD

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Father James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, presidential nominee of the Jobless Party, and his campaign caravan were ready to begin their trek eastward today. There will be a stopover tonight in Hollywood, city of movie stars.

In a talk here last night in the city's civic center Father Cox termed Herbert Hoover "the greatest flop in history."

Father Cox arrived in San Francisco by airplane yesterday from Pittsburgh, where he had hurried last week to replenish his campaign chest after he and his party were stranded in New Mexico.

News reporters greeted him as he alighted from the plane. Cameras clicked. The reporters wanted to know whom he favored most, Hoover or Roosevelt. He replied:

"Can't see either."

INFLATION LAID TO INSULLS

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—A new chapter to the story of high finance of the fallen Insull utility empire has come to light with testimony of an auditor that the value of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., had, in his opinion, been inflated $21,200,000.

Frank E. White, a member of the auditing firm of Arthur Anderson and Company, appearing as a witness before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley in the search for assets of the $250,000,000 bankrupt concern, said his calculations indicated the inflation was made by charging to income items which he believed should have been charged to capital.

His testimony, given yesterday, was disputed, however, by John E. Wing, member of a law firm which gave its approval to some of the company's securities.

Holiday to Continue Until Tomorrow At Sundown

In a holiday observance often cited as "nothing short of a revival in Israel," Jews in Pittsburgh joined with those throughout the world last night in ushering in the New Year 5693. The observance of the holiday, "Rosh Hashanah," continues in orthodox synagogues until tomorrow sundown.

The feast is observed by Jews, orthodox and reform alike, who may not otherwise conform to the rites of the Jewish cause; many thousands who never attend divine worship at other times in the year, make "Rosh Hashanah" the occasion of this "revival."

The holiday is observed on the first day of the seventh Hebrew month, Tishri, and is known among Biblical writers as "Yom Hazzikkaron," Day of Memorial, or "Yom Teruah," Day of Blowing the Alarm. Democrat Victory Sure, Editor Smith Writes

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Political circles reverberated today with discussions of the statement of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, in his first article as editor of the New Outlook, that the Democratic party is not united and that it is "composed of a number ... conflicting elements and interests."

The Democratic party "must purge itself of these influences" if it is to serve the nation in the present crisis, Smith declared.

He also took a slap at the reiterated references to "the forgotten man." He said:

HOOVER CHECKS ROOSEVELT IN IOWA

President Gains, But State Seems Safe For Democrats

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—President Hoover seemingly has stopped Gov. Roosevelt in Iowa, but to all appearances the stopping has come too late to save the state for the Republican nominee. The fact that President Hoover has picked Des Moines for his western speech may have something to do with this new turn.

New returns in the nation-wide postcard presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, tabulated today, showed the two candidates only one vote apart out of 1,355 ballots. That one was in Hoover's favor, the ballots dividing 678 and 677.

Hoover is still 1,111 votes behind with 8,691 Iowa ballots on record. Roosevelt now holds 56 per cent of the Iowa vote. Thus, he can bat a little less than .500 and still carry the state in November.

Kansas is still loyal to Vice President Curtis. Of 1,037 new ballots from Kansas this week the Republicans got 563 and the Democrats 474, a Republican majority of 89. This gives Hoover a Kansas lead of 303 with 7,104 ballots recorded.

Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wisconsin continued on this week's returns to augment substantially the previous convincing majorities Roosevelt had accumulated. They all appear safe for Roosevelt.

Presidential Trend by States

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded For President Hoover and Gov Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

ARMS PARLEY TO SCAN NAZIS

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

GENEVA, Oct. 1.—In exchange for France's acceptance in principle of President Hoover's one-third armament reduction plan, the United States today made a broad concession to France with regard to Europe's "political armies."

Addressing the committee of effectives of the disarmament conference, Hugh Wilson, American Ambassador to Switzerland, announced agreement to the French plan of enlarging the definition of "soldier" to include "all military organized formations."

French circles expressed great satisfaction over Wilson's announcement, holding it opened the the way for thoroughgoing discussion of the growth of "unofficial militarism" in Germany and Italy, which has caused frequent pangs of apprehension in Paris.

It means, according to the French view, that Adolf Hitler's militant Nazi Brownshirts and the German Steelhelmets—the organized league of war veterans—will be subjected to searching examination by the disarmament conference when it reassembles. Mussolini's Italian Blackshirts may also be scrutinized to determine their potential use as military effectives in time of war.

One More Chance To Register for Election

Residents of cities in Allegheny County who have been assessed, still have one chance to qualify in order to vote at the November election.

October 8 will be the third and last registration day in the cities. This is also the last day to pay poll taxes. Only those regularly assessed can pay taxes.

September 7 was the last day to be assessed.

MALONEY FACES QUIZ ON 2 JOBS

Andrew M. Maloney, newly-appointed constable of the First Ward and a city detective, is expected to be asked by Judge Frank P. Patterson what he meant by saying in his petition for the constable position that he would devote all his time to it if appointed.

The judge put the question to Maloney's attorney at the time of his bond hearing, and asked if the constable had resigned as a detective. The answer was that Maloney would give the position all the time it required.

HOLDUP BALKED AT CHESWICK

Cheswick today was saved from a raid by a bandit gang, according to testimony of Detective Walter Monaghan in Central Police Court.

Testifying against Vincent Cealfo, 23, of 1102 Fifth avenue, and Louis Zeola, 26, of 315 North Euclid avenue, charged with being suspicious persons, he said the men had announced their intention of staging a cleanup in Cheswick.

Monaghan and the two men went to a Lincoln avenue garage for a car and announced they were going to Cheswick to pull a job, as there is no police protection in the borough and it would be "soft."

The prisoners were held over.

FILM ACTRESS AND HUSBAND AT COLLEGE

Nancy Drexel and Son Of Ince Enrolled At Antioch

YELLOW SPRINGS, O., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Nancy Drexe, movie actress, will be a co-ed at Antioch College here this year, but the men on the campus needn't get excited about it.

For Miss Drexel, whose name off the screen is Dorothy Kitchen, 21, is the bride of Thomas Ince, Jr., 20, son of the late film producer, and both will matriculate here October 10.

Their entrance applications were approved yesterday.

ADDED RELIEF EXPECTED FOR COUNTY

R.F.C. Action Awaited On Second Loan To State

A further loan for Pennsylvania, probably enabling apportionment of further money to Allegheny County, was to be announced today by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

W. B. Rodgers, executive director of the Pennsylvania State Relief Board, said yesterday the R. F. C. announcement would be made today. The new loan would be the second to this state.

HOPE FOR INCREASE HERE

The first, of $2,500,000.00, provided for relief in three counties—Allegheny, Philadelphia and Northampton. On Thursday Gov. Pinchot announced distribution of the loan to 12 counties, on the grounds that the R. F. C. could not dictate governmental groups to receive the loan.

The second loan was expected to be for the 62 counties which have received no official recognition. It was thought here that Allegheny's October allotment would be increased from the new loan. Allegheny asked for $390,000.00 for October; it received but $300,000.00.

ROAD WORK TO HELP

Meanwhile, it was learned that 65 Pennsylvania counties will receive unemployment work relief through construction of roads with $5,267,000 emergency federal aid money for work relief.

Gov. Pinchot said that state founds will be used to match the federal money, which also includes $5,000,000 of regular road construction federal funds.

The R. F. C. work relief money has been allotted to counties on the basis of unemployment figures.

The Welfare Fund today announced appointment of David M. Craig, of the Koppers Company, as chairman of the men's team of the central division.

BOARD SWINGS AX IN ECONOMY PROGRAM

Highways Department Pruned; Further Slashes Soon

Sixty-five more county employes have been dropped and another 100 probably will go next week in the Commissioners' retrenchment program.

Those let go effective today were all employes of the Department of Highways, Bridges and Tunnels. Fifty-nine were dismissed and six pensioned.

The highest salaried job eliminated was that of Charles F. Mazon, statistician, at $3,600 a year. T. F. Maloy, division engineer, at $3,000 a year, was pensioned. E. S. Brubaker, engineer of agreements, and Norman F. Abel, design engineer, were dismissed.

Others were 15 district foremen at $1,500 a year, 20 district clerks at $1,392 a year, 14 bridge repairmen at $1,800 a year and 11 bridge and tunnel utility men at $3,192 a year.

Further dismissals will occur next week, the commissioners say, made necessary by completion of bond projects and to effect a total $150,000 salary slash to keep the budget within the county's income.

When the payroll slashing is completed the Commissioners expect to have available a considerable sum to use in hiring laborers during the winter in unemployment relief programs.

CLOUDBURSTS FLOOD VALLEY

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Southern California was nearly isolated from San Joaquin Valley today as the result of cloudbursts in the Tehachapi Mountains late yesterday. Six hundred feet of the Southern Pacific Railroad tracks were washed out, state highways blocked and wire communication disrupted.

The downpour first struck Tehachapi, 45 miles from Bakersfield, leaving three feet of water at the railroad station, in the lower part of the city. Another cloudburst was reported in the vicinity of Lebec, on the ridge route, washing away several cabins.

High mountain points reported a heavy snowfall. The overcast skies brought only a trace of rain in Los Angeles.

TAXICAB BANDIT SUSPECT HELD

Suspected of a number of taxicab holdups in the Pittsburgh district during the past 10 days, George Greenlee, 34, a Negro of 2828 Wylie avenue, was under arrest in North Side police station today.

Greenlee was arrested by Patrolman Joseph Scanlon in an alley between West North avenue and Arch street 20 minutes after he is alleged to have held up Mike Collins, of 118 Parker street, Etna, in East General Robinson street. Police said he had a purse containing $5 Collins said the Negro had taken from him and an empty revolver.

John Pearson, of 500 Glenwood avenue, another cab driver held up earlier in the evening, and two others said the suspect also robbed them.

Believing the Negro responsible for a number of street stickups in the Hill district, Center avenue police were investigating.

SONS QUARREL, FATHER DIES

George Kozak, 26, and Paul Kozak, 22, brothers, whose quarrel led to their father's death last night, deputy coroners said, were to be questioned today by homicide detectives.

Michael Kozak, the father, died of heart disease when he attempted to wrestle with Paul as the brothers engaged in a dispute, according to the police report.

The father sided with George in an argument over the possession of automobile polish, and leaped at Paul when he refused to surrender the polish to George, the youths said. George said:

"Pap went to lick Paul for not giving me the polish. No blows were struck, but they grappled and fell, and when I went to pick Pap up he was unconscious. We called the doctor and he was dead. We weren't fighting."

The youths were released on their own recognizance.

WARDEN ASHE IN COLLISION

Warden Stanley P. Ashe, of Western Penitentiary, escaped injury early today when an automobile crashed into his machine at Irwin and Western avenues, North Side. Ashe, en route to his home at 255 Brighton road, Bellevue, had been stopped at the street intersection by a traffic light.

Lloyd Loundes, 32, of 744 Reedsdale street, driver of the machine which collided with Ashe's, was arrested by North Side police on a reckless driving charge and drunkenness. A similar charge was placed against Loundes' companion, Arthur H. Becker, of 1120 Allegheny avenue.

Police took the two men to Allegheny General Hospital for examination. Physicians there refused to examine them, police say.

SET HURRICANE RELIEF FUND

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—The Red Cross advised Gov. James R. Beverley today its initial allotment towards emergency relief for the victims of last Tuesday's hurricane would be $50,000. The insular government already has given $40,000 to the local Red Cross chapter.

At a conference last night of relief representatives with Gov. Beverley it was agreed it would take an expenditure of $10,000 for 60 days and that this would be lowered somewhat thereafter for 30 days or until work can be provided early in January.

BELIZE, Honduras, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—The anxiety of the last few days, since the Caribbean storm which struck Porto Rico has been headed this way, reached its height today. The first storm signals were hoisted last night.

The memory of last year's hurricane, which nearly destroyed Belize, is still fresh in the popular mind here.

Stormy Romance of Girl Swimmer on Rocks

Barely a year ago, pretty Evelyn Grace Cutnell's dive into the sea of matrimony estranged her from her parents through court proceedings. Today the marriage is on the rocks.

Then 18, a well-known swimmer like her champion sister, Mae Cutnell, also a violinist, she defied her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Cutnell, 132 River road, Whitaker, for her 19-year-old husband, Mike Czaplinski, of West Homestead, a steel worker.

They were married in Dravosburg July 30, 1931, and six days later her parents went to the couple's West Homestead apartment and forcibly took her home. Czaplinski charged in a habeas corpus suit he filed in Common Pleas Court to regain his bride.

Evelyn ran to her husband to embrace him in court, her father pried her away and she sobbed during the hearing. She was happy for two weeks, when Judge James H. Gray allowed them three visits a week, and happier when he ordered the couple reunited September 2, 1931, despite the protests of Mrs. Cutnell, who considered Evelyn too young for marriage and wanted her to finish her last year in Munhall High School.

Today Evelyn has a suit for divorce on file in Common Pleas Court.

2 DIE IN FIGHT ON CAMPUS

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—A. C. Snider, 32, motorcycle policeman, and a Negro bandit identified as Jim Asher of Demopolis, were killed last night is a gun battle on the University of Alabama Campus.

Garland Tanner, another policeman, was wounded seriously.

William Noble, of Gasden, a medical student, and a young woman companion were stopped by the Negro who demanded money. Asher agreed to wait with Nolan while the young woman went to get the money.

She notified police and Asher opened fire as the officers approached.

Erlanger 'Widow' Reported Marrying

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—The Daily News says Miss Charlotte Fixel, recognized by the courts as the common-law widow of the late Abraham Erlanger, went to Atlantic City yesterday to be married to Benjamin Abrams, middle-aged cloak and suit manufacturer.

Miss Fixel was quoted as saying they would be wed "today or tomorrow." She was granted a widow's share in the theater owner's estate after a legal battle. She is a former show girl.

Asks Divorce to End One-Day Marriage

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—(INS.)—Jean Malin, noted Broadway entertainer now presiding over a Hollywood night club, has applied for a Mexican divorce because his married life lasted only one day.

Malin, his attorneys said, married Miss Fay Hyman in 1930 and on the following day they separated. Incompatibility was given as the cause of the divorce which, it was said, will be granted in Sonora, Mexico.

Husband 'Eccentric,' Wife Wins Divorce

ERIE, Oct. 1.—Alleged eccentricities of her husband, Ernest W. Storch, won a divorce for Dorothea A. Storch.

The wife told Judge William E. Hirt, Ernest would strip to the waist, lie down and sleep in the same room in which she was entertaining, and one time dragged her from bed and locked her out of the house, forcing her to sleep in a shed.

TORTURE TRIAL OPENS MONDAY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 1.—(INS.)—Declaring she hoped the trial would "result in saving some other boy's life," Mrs. Julia Maillefert, of Westfield, N. J., was here today to attend the trial Monday of two convict guards charged with the "sweat box" death of her son, Arthur. She said:

"I am not vindictive. Nothing can bring Arthur back to me. My only consolation is that the trial may result in saving some other boy's life."

Maillefert died in a "sweat box" at the Sunbeam Prison Camp. Capt. George M. Courson, warden, and Solomon Higginbotham, guard, were indicted by a grand jury and will be tried Monday.

Father Gets Writ In Fight for Children

Seeking custody of his children, Jesse R. Tussey obtained a writ of habeas corpus in Common Pleas Court directed to his wife, Romayne Tussey, 135 Margaret street, Mt. Oliver, who, he alleged, has the children, Raymond B., 14, and Glenna M., 7, in her home, and has refused to allow him to see them. A hearing was fixed for October 4.

Apologetic Robber Holds Up Drug Store

Apologizing for his actions, a polite robber looted the cash register of J. C. McNulty's Pharmacy, 1125 North Highland avenue, last night and escaped, police reported.

Warren Roberts, a clerk, and S. S. Waters, of 1315 Heberton street, a customer, were covered by the bandit's revolver.

Free Chicago Doctor In Death of Wife

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Dr. William A. O'Brien, indicted for murder for the death of his wife, Vera, several weeks ago, was freed yesterday when the State moved to nol-pros the charge. Prosecutors stated that Mrs. O'Brien's supposed suicide notes were identified as being in her husband's handwriting but that they possessed insufficient evidence to take the case to trial.

Man Drinks Poison And Summons Police

Charles Kraus, 38, of 6321 Waldron street, was recovering in the Pittsburgh Hospital today after drinking poison and calling the police, according to Sergt. Joseph Pierson, of Squirrel Hill Police Station. He said he "was tired of it all," police said.

Policeman Paroled In Beating of Youth

John Shoderbeck, 45, Duquesne policeman, was placed on probation for a year by Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County, following his conviction of aggravated assault and battery in Criminal Court.

It was charged the policeman beat Michael Zelinik, Jr., 19, Beech alley, Duquesne, with his mace, causing cuts on the youth's head which required seven stitches. Zelinik, it was testified, failed to move fast enough to suit the officer when ordered to move on.

WEEK OF PRAYER TO START IN CHURCHES TOMORROW

ON THE AIR TONIGHT

Stage Stars, Will Durant On WCAE

Talks by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Will Durant; a gala all-star show featuring Evelyn Herbert and Robert Halliday, internationally famous operetta stars, with Vincent Lopez and Phil Harris' orchestras and Walter O'Keefe, breezy Magic Carpet pilot; four hours of continuous rhythm to tantalize the toes of the dancers—this is only part of tonight's radio treat.

Mr. Durant

Mr. Stimson, speaking from the Union League Club in Philadelphia, delivers a political address, the subject of which has not been announced, over an extensive NBC network, including KDKA tonight at 8:30.

Durant, who recently completed his second trip around the world to gather material for his "History of Civilization," soon to be published, discusses "The Problem of Marriage" over WCAE at 8 o'clock. During his talk, he reveals the results of an extensive study of the marriage problems of several nations.

Six hits from as many Broadway musical shows comprise the program offered by Evelyn Herbert and Robert Halliday when they make the second of a series of guest appearances on the cigaret dance hour over WCAE at 10. The singing stars are assisted by an orchestra under the direction of Louis Katzman. Lopez and Harris, playing from Chicago and Los Angeles, alternate in providing the dance rhythms.

Program Pointers

Hazel Martin, Clarksburg, W. Va., pianist frequently heard by Pittsburgh dialers, presents a novelty recital on KDKA tonight at 6:45. Included on Miss Martin's program are Cyril Scott's "Danse Negre" and "Minstrels" and "Golliwogg's Cake Walk," characteristic selections from the pen of Debussy . . . Smetana's "Vltava," a tone poem describing the scenic beauties of Bohemia, is a highlight of Erno Rapee's musical visit to Prague on WCAE at 9 o'clock tonight. Anton Dvorak, recognized as the greatest national Bohemian composer, is represented on the program by "Humoresque," "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and the largo movement from the "New World Symphony."

And I Can Prove It

George Jessel, who comes from One Hundred Seventeenth street and Lennox avenue, was the victim of a belligerent southerner recently in a speakeasy. For no reason whatsoever the Dixielander shook a threatening finger in Jessel's face and bellowed:

"You no good Yankee! You helped Lincoln free the slaves!"

"No I didn't!" screamed the frightened actor, "I was with Gus Edwards at the time!"

Observation

James Cagney says he is going to become a doctor. Well, he ought to get off to a good start just taking care of all the women he has bruised in pictures.

erciless Truth

Leo Fitzgerald, the agent, as sitting around in Moore's esterday, when Willie Moore sat down at the table. Leo was telling the gang that he had just seen Riley, an old Moore waiter, and was asking Willie to take him back.

Willie kept saying, no, no, and finally getting tired of the argument, got up and left. Whereupon Fitzgerald turned to the rest at the table and growled:

"Good night, things are so tough, I can't even sell a waiter!"

Se Here, Now?

"Mr. Winchell," writes Har- Seton, of Sutton Place, "the fact that your initials constitute an obscenity, puts you in very good company—or vice versa—including Grace George, Herbert Hoover, Marilyn Miller, Charlie Chaplin and Greta Garbo. To say nothing of Mickey Mouse!"

On the Spot

Monroe Silver says it happened. A Broadway playboy eloped with a non-professional gal, and they honeymooned that night in the cabarets. When they entered the Hollywood at 48th street, the cuties of the floor show, who hadn't heard of his elopement, embraced and kissed him furiously. His wife was seated at a ringside table by a thoughtful captain.

When the groom finally reached her, she groaned:

"Well, that's fine—with all those women kissing you!"

"Don't you start," he panted, "I had a tough enough time explaining who you were!"

Never Heard of Him

Fritz Kreisler was at a party one night and amused the guests with stories and songs. He even did card tricks! One of the guests, a wealthy man, was impressed. He said to Fritz:

"I'm giving a party next week at my house. I'd like having you there to entertain my friends."

Kreisler, a little bothered, told the man to ask his booking agent. Then he counseled his agent to ask for $2,000, hoping the price would be too high. The agent told the man it would cost him $3,000 for Kreisler's appearance. To their amazement, the man agreed, and Kreisler had to appear, of course.

It was a cold night, and Kreisler came tardy, and held up the event by saying he'd have to warm his hands, as he tuned his violin.

"Oh," said the millionaire, "so you play the fiddle, too?"

Of All Brats!

Take it from Joe Hill, who was in a day coach because all the Pullman pews had been peddled. He watched a little boy, rolled up newspaper in hand, pound the bald head of a man who was dozing in the seat ahead. The man, however, didn't mind much. He handed the boy an orange.

The kid spurned it. His mother, annoyed at such manners, insisted that he accept it and then said:

"So what do you say to the nice man?"

Handing the orange back to the man, the kid grumbled:

"Peel it!"

Merrily We Roll a Log

"Light Lines and Dears," by Wilfred Funk

And plus the pitchurs by Jeff Machamer
The book should make 'em plenty jackamer.
I stole this theme from Ogden Nash
My next-to-Greta Garbo pash.

For doing this, you Mickey Mice!)

Always the Showman

One of the more engaging stories about the late David Belasco was unfolded last night. Belasco, they were saying, had five favorite attaches to whom he presented a cash gift each week.

He did it in this manner. He inserted a brand new $20 bill in one envelope, two 20s in another, three in a third, four in a fourth, and five in a fifth. But to keep them all on edge and to make certain that no one could complain of favoritism, he made them draw lots for the marked envelopes containing the heavy sugar.

In other words, one of the quintet was always sure of getting at least $20 extra every week, with the one chance in five of getting a century. An inexpensive fee for loyalty.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

There will be no lack of stage entertainment next week. In the Nixon the Theater Guild's "The Good Earth," with Alla Nazimova and Earle Larrimore, will open the subscription season of the American Theater Society. In the Pitt there will be return of stock with a new company, the Edwin Vail Players, under the direction of an old friend, Eddie Vail. The initial attraction will be "The Bride the Sun Shines On." Vaudeville will be resumed here for a week, and Syria Mosque will be the scene. Syria's Varieties will introduce 10 acts, featuring Mahrae in a novelty, Telapa-Vision. (An old master at program arrangement, Eugene L. Connelly, formerly manager of the Davis, booked the show, and that is enough of a guarantee of quality for most folks.

"Bird of Paradise," featuring Dolores Del Rio and Joel McCrea, which just closed a week in the Stanley, will be the Davis screen feature from today on until a week has elapsed.

"White Zombie," another picture recently seen downtown, beginning today, will be the Sheridan Square attraction through Tuesday. Bela Lugosi is featured.

The Four Marx Brothers begin a full week in the Enright today. "Horse Feathers," did you say? Yep, that's the title of the picture, their latest fun film.

The Academy, opening with a Sunday midnight show, will present "Midnight Ramblers," its first road show of the season, to be combined with specialties by members of the burlesque stock heretofore quartered there.

Liane Haid will come to the Avenue Cinema screen Monday in "The Song Is Over," German movie by the producing company responsible for "Two Hearts In Waltz Time."

Troubles All Packed Up By L. & H.

By GEORGE SEIBEL

The funniest pair in Hollywood, Laurel and Hardy, stretched their antics over a full-length film at the Penn Theater yesterday and there were no bare spots. "Pack Up Your Troubles" it is called, and if anybody came to the theater with troubles they were soon forgotten. Even the war becomes a gigantic frolic, as Laurel and Hardy are sent over the top, hide in a tank which runs amuck through a German trench, and bring home a mob of prisoners roped in by the wire entanglements uprooted by the tank.

Mr. Seibel

After Laurel and Hardy have been demoted to the kitchen police they haul garbage; not knowing what else to do with it, they bring it to the General. But wherever their heads may be, their hearts are in the right place, and when their pal Eddie Smith is killed they take his baby girl under their idiotic wings and proceed to find grandpa Smith.

On a policeman's advice they buy a city directory and visit all the Smiths to find the grandfather of Eddie's baby. In one house they break up a happy wedding by the announcement that they have brought Eddie's baby. But they keep right on—even visiting the Smith Brothers and planning to look up Al.

Meanwhile, when they iron baby clothes they get burned and whatever else they do they get bumped. The theory that the world is round doesn't apply in their case—it's all corners.

When they open a restaurant car and go out for lunch, all the cats in the county lunch in the car. When they fill their pockets with cigars, they grab wieners by mistake. They have fun with a dumb waiter; they rout their enemies with pots of hot coffee; they are so ridiculous that they become sublime.

And at last they find the grandpa of Eddie's baby—but have to flee from new troubles and a murderous kitchen knife. The audience is exhausted with laughter and only hopes they escape to make another idiotic film.

Among the short features there is one of Hindu life, as seen by an elephant, which is as good as a trip to Benares.

Huston Stars In Warner

By MARGARET RUSSELL

The American people are shown a panoramic view of their own madness in the Warner this week. "American Madness," with Walter Huston, Pat O'Brien, Kay Johnson and Constance Cummings is a vigorous indictment of America's lack of faith in American institutions; of the credulous and excited ear lent too readily to idle gossip. It is a preachment of faith and a plea for sanity in community banking.

Its commendable propaganda is clothed in the garments of a fairly good story with nice contrasts of human strength and weakness in Dickson, the bank president, and one of his employes who precipitates a bank run by facilitating a bank robbery.

"American Madness" is weakened by not being a typical case. Not every bank has a Walter Huston at its head. Not every bank is in as good financial condition as his bank was. The robbery which started his bank run was an event extraneous to the natural economic calamities which ordinarily confront a bank during times of financial duress, as the present. The strength of the bank was the strength of the man at its head. Its collateral was his faith in human nature. This is a nice ideal. But how far it can be employed in the operation of the banking business is a question.

"American Madness" justifies its existence on the American screen by holding before the public a nation-wide mirror of reproach for its inflammability and participation in mob-response to a situation which requires individual consideration of circumstance. But it deals only with the surface tides which ripple to each whispered wind of gossip. It neither defines nor proposes a remedy for the deeper tide of economic stress which has swept over the nation in the last three years.

The Warner's program includes "Screen Souvenirs," glimpses of early recordings of the movie camera: Tom and Jerry in "Barnyard Bunk," a musical cartoon film, an organlogue, "Singing with Singing Sam," and Fox Movietone News.

MADGE EVANS, ONCE CHILD STAR OF PHOTOPLAYS, HAS SIGNED NEW CONTRACT WITH M-G-M

BITS OF LIFE — All in a Day — By MARK HELLINGER

What the Public Wants

"IT'S romance the public wants; not life . . ."

Sam Schwartz, the theatrical producer, pounded the table with his pudgy, little hands as he spoke.

". . . People don't want to see their own miserable, squalid lives mirrored on the stage. They like visions. The guy who sits in an office, and who will probably sit there for the rest of his life, dreams of adventure . . . The shop girl who is engaged to an elevator man dreams of marrying a Vanderbilt . . . The woman they call bad dreams of a home and babies . . . All of us dream and it's the job of the stage to create further dreams."

This little lecture on the public's theatrical taste was being delivered to a dejected young man who, needless to add, was a playwright. I say "needless," because there is nothing more dejected in the world than a young playwright in the process of having his first play turned down. As a general rule, the occasion is followed by suicide or a return to the grocery store, which, from a young playwright's point of view, are one and the same thing.

"I'm telling you, young man, you've got real talent. I like the way you've built up the situations in your play. It's the theme that's all wrong. Go home and get another plot—something happy and cheerful, dealing with gay, nice people—and start all over again. When you've finished it, I'll be glad to read it . . . Good morning, Mr. Martin."

Mr. Martin sighed, gathered his manuscript and slowly walked out of the office. At that moment, Campbell's Funeral Parlor would have offered him a life contract as a professional mourner, so downcast and miserable was his expression.

Mr. Martin—oh hang it; don't let's be so formal; we'll call him Jack—had good reason to be miserable. For, at the moment of leaving Sam Schwartz's office, his sole possessions were a rejected play, two dollars in cash and a rent bill for twenty. Which, in itself, is a good plot for a play but poor material on which to write one.

In Jack's case, there was just nothing else he could do except write plays. Unlike the usual young playwright of fiction, Jack had not forsaken a substantially respectable home for the thorny path of writing. He had no office desk to go back to when his plays failed to make good.

He was the unsuccessful son of an unsuccessful playwright father who had died after seeing his fiftieth play expire after six performances. His father had been able to keep going by an occasional job as an actor, but Jack, unfortunately, possessed a pan that was only good for scaring babies. And, unless they revived Frankenstein, he couldn't see much hope as an actor.

However, a new play had to be written. A play that dealt with nice, cheery folk who were happy and gay. Dreams had to be woven that would make men thrill, shop girls sigh and bad women weep. Just how it was to be done was a mystery that would have puzzled Philo Vance.

Jack's meals for the next three months would have made an 18-day diet look like a banquet. And if Mr. Mills could solve the Treasury's problems with the ingenuity with which Jack solved his rent problem, we'd all be collecting federal dividends instead of paying income tax.

How to start it? How to end it? Jack's life had never been particularly pretty, and he had been writing along lines that he knew best. If the characters were poor, he had seen to it that they lived in poor fashion. If somebody died, then somebody was dead. But this was a topsy-turvy order. The public wanted romance instead of life. Oh, well—

At last the play was finished. An airy little piece with Park avenue and Newport as a background. The characters were happy and cheery. Not a man possessed less than a million and not a woman dressed in anything less than a creation by Lanvin or Paquin. Just whether the characters could all be called "nice" depends on where you come from. I rather imagine some of their habits would be frowned on and perhaps sneered at, as a little dull, in New York.

Off went the manuscript to Sam Schwartz, and then followed four weeks of anxiety for Jack. After two weks of silence, he tried telephoning the Schwartz office, and, after giving a bland female every particular about himself but his religion, he was told that Mr. Schwartz would write him in due course.

It got so that Jack could tell you more about postal deliveries than the General Postoffice itself. He even hung around the front of the house between mails, and the postman, sensing his impatience, almost hated to have to repeat each time: "Sorry, nothing for you, Mr. Martin."

Almost four weeks to the day after the manuscript had been sent, a letter arrived. Jack hacked it open with eager, trembling hands.

"Dear Sir," the letter read: "My brother, Sam Schwartz, is away in Europe, but I have read your play with interest and should like to have an opportunity of discussing it with you. Reuben Schwartz."

After shaving himself with an impatience that made his face look as if it had been run over by a lawn mower, and almost forgetting to put on a tie, Jack literally flew over to the Schwartz office and dug his heels viciously into the waiting room carpet for two hours until the great Reuben Schwartz arrived.

"Mr. Schwartz will see you now"—and before the secretary could usher him in, Jack had swept past her and almost sprinted into Reuben's office.

"Good morning, Mr. Martin. Take a seat, will you?"

With hands as fat and pudgy as his brother's, Reuben motioned Jack to a seat.

"Have a cigar?"

Jack took one almost mechanically, and started nervously biting off the end.

"Well, Mr. Schwartz, what did you think of my play?" Jack asked me as he tried to light his cigar with nervous, shaking hands.

"The play?" Reuben Schwartz asked the question as if he had never heard of a play. "Oh yes, the play . . . I'll tell you about that in a minute. Just let me get this cigar lighted and make a phone call."

The operation of lighting a cigar and phoning probably took less than two minutes. But to Jack it seemed hours. At last, Reuben spoke.

"Now then, Mr. Martin," he murmured, "let's get to your play. I like the way it's written and I like the way you've handled your situations. I really believe, young man, that you have a great talent."

Jack's heart was pounding. His dream play of happiness and contentment had hit the mark! He—

"It's your theme that's wrong," Reuben Schwartz said suddenly. "The public is tired of all this society stuff. They don't want realities wrapped up in dream tinsel. They like to see themselves and the ordinary things they do mirrored on the stage.

"It's life the public wants, not romance."

Walker, McKee May Appear in Twin Mayor Act

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

New York will have to do some expert voting to prevent its next mayor from being twins.

Mayor McKee won the game in the Supreme Court. Tammany grabbed the second in the Appellate decision. When Jimmy Walker gets home they will play off the tie in the Court of Appeals.

Jimmy is at Gibraltar in a boat with a busted propeller. McKee is in New York in the same condition.

The way things have been going in New York politics a man could pick up a fat living painting new names on glass doors.

Require Two Hours to Apply Makeup

Weird makeups, among other inconveniences, take time. Boris Karloff's amazing makeup in "The Mask of Fu Manchu" takes two hours to apply. Not only his face, but his entire body, is "made up" for the character.

Morgan Will Play in 'Phantom Fame'

Frank Morgan, who was brought to Hollywood by RKO a few weeks ago for "Secrets of the French Police," gets his second assignment with Lee Tracy and Lupe Velez in the cast of "Phantom Fame."

'Blonde Venus' Is Stanley Picture

By EDWARD W. GOSS

"Blonde Venus," starring the alluring German maid, Marlene Dietrich, in the Stanley, is fair entertainment.

Miss Dietrich is cast as a night-club entertainer and the wife of a scientist. The scientist is not a well man—in fact he will die if he doesn't receive attention from a great doctor. Marlene gets the necessary wherewithall to send her husband away for treatment. She doesn't employ nice measures to procure the money—she takes up with a millionaire, and her husband, after he is cured, discovers her shame. Thus the picture is launched.

From here on is shown various steps a woman takes on the downward path. Her heart broken by her husband's attitude, the night-club entertainer takes her young son and goes away. The husband, believing she is unfit to care for the child, puts detectives on her trail with orders to return the boy to him.

As the detectives chase the mother and son from city to city, the picture suffers. It is more than a little tiresome watching the mother grab her son out of bed in the middle of night and rush off to nother place.

Finally, when the mother loses the child and arrives at the stage of dire poverty, everything changes as if by magic. The screen goes dark. The next moment the audience finds itself looking in on a night-club in Paris where Marlene, the broken-hearted distitute woman of a second ago, is the big star of the review. How did she become transformed? Ask the picture makers. The action doesn't linger long in Paris. It jumps back to the United States for an "Alice In Wonderland" fadeout.

Besides Miss Dietrich, the cast includes Dickie Moore, Herbert Marshall and Gary Grant.

Hearst News Shows Game

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The first of the world series games between the New York Yankees and the Chicago Cubs, played at the Yankee Stadium, provided an unusual quantity of color as well as thrills. It is shown in Hearst Metrotone News in Penn, Fulton and other theaters. All of the highlights of the game, won by the Yankees by a score of 12 to 6, are pictured.

The climax of Hollywood's reception to Gov. Roosevelt, a dazzling night pageant in the Olympic stadium, is vividly pictured. The inimitable Will Rogers introduces the Democratic standard bearer and convulses the audience and the Governor as well with his witty remarks. Then follows the parade of gorgeous floats, beautifully illuminated, and carrying the cream of the movie colony's beautiful girls.

Scenes of the bombed home of Judge Webster Thayer, at Worcester, Mass., the jurist who presided at the Sacco-Vanzetti trial, are shown. Harper's Bazar's presentation of the latest fall styles are beautifully pictured and described by Kathleen Howard, fashion editor of Harper's Bazar.

From Wendover, England, come pictures of the wedding of Joan MacDonald, daughter of the British Prime Minister, and Dr. Alastair MacKinnon.

Amelia Earhart, famous aviatrix, appears with a group of members of the National Women's Party on the porch of the White House, following a plea to the President to urge the passage of the Lucretia Mott amendment, calling for equal rights for women.

Dad Bennett Soon to Be Featured

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 1.

With the praise for "Madison Square Garden" still being sounded out here, Charles R. Rogers has stepped out and bought another motion picture story called "Strictly Personal."

Written by the redoubtable Wilson Mizner and Robert Sherman, this film is intended as a co-starring vehicle for Alison Skipworth and Richard Bennett.

You may be surprised to hear that these two veteran players are making quite a box-office hit in "Madame Racketeer," modest little comedy of which nobody expected very much.

Mr. Bennett

While Mr. Rogers is not saying what their new story is like, everybody knows that Wilson Mizner is an authority on rackets, con-games, gamblers and the like. The deduction is pretty obvious.

At any rate, the picture will be going into production before long with Harry Joe Brown at the megaphone.

BOULEVARD TOPICS:

Even the ocean has its speed laws. Preston Foster found it out the other day when he got a ticket off San Pedro for making too many knots in a speedboat . . . The Frederic Marches' "Gay Nineties" party has started a cycle. Latest costume affair was the "eighteenth century" evening given by Alfred Newman, musical director at United Artists. Guests included Lewis Milestone, Jeanette Loff, Mrs. Kendall Glaenzer, Andrew Henderson, Eddie Sutherland, Kay Francis, Kenneth McKenna, Jeanette Loff, Frances Goldwyn, Myrna Loy and the Arthur Hornblows. The Newman home was lighted with candles and an 18-piece orchestra played chamber music. Climax of the affair came when a pair of radio cops appeared and asked for less racket. The musicians were outraged, but the law was firm.

Jeanette Loff

Take it from me, Clara Bow looks great. I visited the red-head on the set yesterday and she never was slimmer or more attractive.

STEEL OUTPUT EXPANDING SLOWLY

By B. E. V. LUTY

Further and more marked improvement in steel trade conditions and prospects occurred this week. Sentiment has undergone a distinct rise, in the form of hopefulness rather than cheerfulness, for the whole swing in the last 30 days has been disappointingly slow.

Steel ingot production was up slightly this week, but could not be estimated at a point above the 16 per cent of last week. Successive fortnights have shown approximately 14, 15 and 16 per cent rates respectively and further increases of somewhat the same order are expected.

There is additional evidence that improvement is more of general than of mere seasonal character and thus production is expected to rise continuously with little or none of the usual year-end slackening.

Lack of purely seasonal increase is noted particularly in the matter of farmer buying, which has had little increase if any.

AUTOMOTIVE PROSPECTS

The automobile trade is working hard on sales and new models, but is planning very conservatively as to actual production in the remainder of the year. August production of cars and trucks, United States and Canada, is officially reported at 94,391, making 1,124,096 for eight months. While the total is very small, the ratio to total steel production is nearly one-fourth higher than the average for the same period in the last four years.

There has been a marked improvement in prospects of railroads repairing rolling stock in the near future, as a result of better traffic outlook. R. F. C. loans have been available, but recently railroads were disposed to defer work to save interest.

Fabricated structural steel awards in the last few weeks have averaged approximately the same as earlier in the year.

REPAIRS BEING MADE

The recent increase in steel demand has come from the smaller buyers, who order with greater frequency rather than in larger lots. There are plain indications of more repair work being done.

In the finished products September improvement was most marked in the case of tubular goods, including standard pipe, boiler tubes, bedstead tubing, oil country goods, etc. Sheets showed the next largest improvement, while rather inharmoniously wire products and merchant bars showed little or no improvement. Concrete reinforcing bars and wire mesh had a marked gain, but the season is almost ended.

Finished steel prices are holding fully as well as formerly.

SCRAP MARKET QUIET

The Pittsburgh district scrap market was quiet this week, following the recent burst of activity, but prices have remained as strong as ever and the next mill purchases of any volume are expected to put the market up, as supplies are very limited. National Tube Company has bought 20,000 tons of heavy melting steel scrap at approximately $9.00 delivered, Lorain.

Steel ingot production in the quarter just ended was almost precisely 2,500,000 tons, representing 23 per cent decrease from the June quarter and 42 per cent from the March quarter. A substantial gain for the new quarter is expected, and, while no predictions are hazarded, it may be said that a 20 per cent average producing rate would make 3,400,000 tons for the quarter, or 37 per cent gain over the September quarter and a slight gain over the June quarter.

Simms Yields Estate Of His First Wife

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Albert Gallatin Simms, former congressman from New Mexico, who married Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick March 9, at Colorado Springs, filed a release in Surrogates Court yesterday from all interest in the estate of his first wife, Mrs. Katherine Mather Simms, because of his marriage.

The will of the first Mrs. Simms created trust funds for relatives and provided for certain specific legacies and then placed the remainder of the estate in trust for Simms' benefit for life except in event of remarriage.

Daughter of Oil Operator Ends Life

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Virginia Grogan, 27, daughter of Walter G. Grogan, oil operator, was found dead in her room at her parents' home here yesterday.

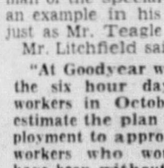
Her mother said she heard a shot and ran to her daughter's room. The young woman was dead. A pistol was found on the floor.

SLUMP THROWS LABOR CASE FORWARD

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Business conscience is no longer satisfied with inhuman drifting, which deprives many workers of employment as technological efficiency in industry rises.

The acuteness of the depression has at length awakened executives to the social aspects of the question, and the new desire is to correlate hours of employment with the demand for production, rather than the number of employes on the payroll.



Mr. Rukeyser

Under the leadership of Walter Teagle, president Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, a nation-wide campaign will be launched beginning next Monday to spread available jobs more widely among the available manpower of the nation. The argument runs that it is better to spread a living wage among a larger number of persons, than to leave a smaller group with a surplus, which is not spent for consumption goods. On the other hand, the method shifts to the workers the cost of the depression, though under the modified New Hampshire plan capital is asked to bear part of the cost out of profits.

PRAISES SHORT WEEK

In connection with the spread the work campaign, a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States quite independently has been gathering facts concerning working periods in industry. In a report to the directors this committee has recommended as an emergency measure the spread of available work of all kinds through wide adoption of shorter working periods. The committee will continue to gather data upon which it will base a recommendation for policies to apply after the emergency has passed.

P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, who has acted as chairman of the special committee, set an example in his own company, just as Mr. Teagle did.

Mr. Litchfield said to me:

"At Goodyear we inaugurated the six hour day for factory workers in October, 1930. We estimate the plan has given employment to approximately 3,000 workers who would otherwise have been without income since that time.

URGES FLEXIBILITY

"Begining October 1, we will operate under a five-day week in our general offices. In adopting these policies we have been actuated by a desire to do our share to relieve unemployment.

"The hours of labor should not be fixed on a five days a week basis, but should be elastic to meet conditions. The average number of hours of work should be aimed at being such a number as would provide steady employment for all those who are able and willing to work. The number of hours should be flexible enough to meet current conditions."

Leading chemical manufacturers turned to the six hour day last year, and for months Judge Amos L. Beaty, president of the American Petroleum Institute has been urging oil men to change working hours in order to spread jobs.

FRANCE EASES IMPORT RULE

PARIS, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—The French import quotas for the next three months, announced today, show that certain American industries, particularly radio equipment, will receive more liberal treatment than in the three months just passed.

The new quota for American radio apparatus represents an increase of approximately 10 per cent, according to estimates of the American Embassy.

The former radio quotas caused American interests to protest on the ground that discrimination was shown in favor of Germany and other European producers.

The quota on motors also was increased.

The official journal announced a new system for licensing importers of American radio equipment under which it was expected much of the previous confusion would be eliminated.

W. R. Wilson Heads Copeland Products

DETROIT, Oct. 1.—William R. Wilson, chairman of Copeland Products, Inc., will become president of the company, succeeding Louis Ruthenburg,

STOCKS HIGHER IN NARROW TRADING

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(A.P.)—Stocks improved moderately in the early trading today, although the market remained extremely sluggish.

Some irregularity at the opening gave way to general but narrow advances. American Telephone and Westinghouse rallied a point, while improvement of fractional proportions was made by United States Steel, Allied Chemical, American Can, American Smelting, American Tobacco "B" and Santa Fe. Northern Pacific and Standard Gas eased a shade.

The market began the new month and quarter with a record of narrow fluctuations and dull trading just behind it. Price movements for slightly more than a week have been inconclusive, with trading described as highly professional, but brokerage house commentators pointed out that such a state of affairs could hardly be expected to last much longer.

Perhaps the chief topic of interest was the Nickel Plate situation. Bankers for the road were hoping that further deposits would be received, but said they had no knowledge of what might follow a default of payment on the $20,000,000 note issue.

Sterling cables eased 7-16 of a cent at the opening, the rate being $3.45⅝.

BRITISH EXPAND HOME TRADE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(INS.)—American exports to Great Britain have practically equaled foreign competition during the last two years, the Commerce Department reports.

The United States supplied 18 per cent of total British imports from non-British countries during the second quarter of 1932, compared with 19 per cent in the first quarter, 16 per cent in the second quarter of 1931, and 18.5 per cent in the second quarter of 1930. The department said:

"Despite recent extension of tariffs in Great Britain it is interesting to note that United States trade appears to be about equal to foreign competition, in relation to the trade of the British dominions and colonies. However, the comparison is not so favorable as in recent months, as an increased percentage of the total British imports has been supplied by empire colonies."

The United States supplied in the second quarter of 1930 about 13 per cent of all British imports. The proportion declined to 11.2 per cent for the corresponding quarter of 1931. It was 12.6 per cent in the first quarter of 1932 and 11 per cent in the second quarter of this year.

Demand for Glass Products Expands

Demand for pressed and blown glassware and specialties continues strong, with a steadily increasing volume, according to the American Glass Review. September also brought a livelier demand for window glass. Orders during the final two weeks of September probably bulked larger than in any other similar period since early in the spring. Movement of plate glass and other flat glass products has improved, but real volume is lacking.

Pennsylvania Well Completions Less

OIL CITY, Pa., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—The Derrick says 123 Pennsylvania grade oil wells were completed in September and that initial daily production was 459 barrels.

There were 21 dry wells and 11 gassers.

Bradford and Allegany drilling was curtailed during the month, the bulk of new production coming from Southeastern Ohio.

In August 157 wells were completed, with 478 barrels initial daily production. In August there were 15 dry wells and 19 gassers.

British Half Year Deficit $358,800,000

LONDON, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Treasury returns made public yesterday show that national expenditures exceeded revenue by 104,000,000 pounds ($358,800,000) for the first half of the financial year, but there was an increase of 5,000,000 pounds in revenue compared with the corresponding period in 1931, and a decrease of 11,000,000 pounds in expenditures. Revenue totalled 268,000,000 pounds and expenditure and sinking fund 372,000,000 pounds.

Stock Movements Narrow As Traders Await Developments

Consensus in speculative circles is that the market appears to be awaiting something in the way of important news development which might be immediately ahead. Try as it would, the street could think of nothing in the way of imminent development which would account for the current lethargy. President Hoover's speech, which is awaited with interest, is not due until the middle of next week. Attention was called to the Jewish holiday, however, and it was reasoned that evening up traders who will be away in observance of the holiday was probably a factor of considerable weight.

One rather astute observer, a trader of considerable weight when the market is moving, expressed the opinion that the market was suffering from apathy and lethargy rather than from anything in the way of real weakness. And from his further comment, it was apparent this trader looked for the list to break out of the current rut on the side of the advance shortly.

Deposits of "Nickel Plate" unsecured 6 per cent notes were still lagging today, with only little more than 60 per cent of the $20,000,000 total, or about $12,241,000 face amount having been turned in in assent to the plan for refinancing the issue maturing today. Wall street, however, was confident that in spite of the drab appearance of things, the matter would be worked out in a way to avoid trouble. The idea seemed to be that the road would be able to secure the consent of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to declare the plan operative on the basis of deposits in hand and thus be in a position to extend the time for deposit.

Reactionary tendencies in commodity prices, says Standard Statistics Company, have resulted largely from publication of bearish crop reports for the two major commodities, cotton and wheat, political uncertainties which have driven numerous speculators from the markets, and the fact that earlier marked expansion in trading activity in the more volatile raw materials carried prices beyond the levels justified by prospective betterment in consumer demand.

Arrangements have been completed in conjunction with the Trunk Line Association, Western Union Telegraph Company officials announced, whereby the railroad and Pullman tickets will be delivered to homes or offices for a nominal charge in the boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx and parts of Brooklyn. Tickets will be delivered upon telephone requests to any of the consolidated or city ticket offices of the various railroads. The company also has completed a foreign mail remittance service in conjunction with the American Express Co.

Oil circles heard today that the Imperial Oil Co., Ltd., controlled by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, has embarked on an expansion program to enable it to operate on an extensive scale in the prairie provinces of Canada. Heretofore, it was said, most of the oil and gasoline used in Western Canada moved there from the United States by railroad, but since the imposition of the import duty on refined products from other than empire nations, American companies have had to make other plans. The Standard subsidiary, it was reported, will refine its products at Halifax.

Canadian Wheat Exports at Peak

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—The export clearances of wheat for the week ending September 23, amounting to 6,654,000 bushels, was the largest so far this crop year, and exceeds the volume of export clearances in any single week during the entire crop year 1931-2, says a statement issued today by H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce.

Clearances for the eight weeks amounted to 31,591,000 bushels, as compared with 19,466,000 for the same period in 1931.

Agricultural Price Index Holds Steady

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The farm price index of the Department of Agriculture September 15 held to the level of 90 per cent of pre-war level, reached the month previous, compares with an index of 91 per cent on June 15, the low far during the depression, and an index of 72 per cent on September 15 a year ago.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenin

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

October's bright, blue weather is with us again after a long year. And this cheerful month gives promise of a new zest in life.

To start out with, today, the very first day of October, brings a wedding, the opening hunt of all the grown-up hunts round about and of the Hart's Run Junior Hunt, and the final day of play for the Fox Chapel woman's golf championship.

The championship play was to have ended yesterday, but was continued through today, since one day this week rain interfered with plans.

But for the bride of today. She is Josephine Moseley, daughter of Mrs. Harry King Moseley, of Neville street, who is becoming the bride of John Corry Kerr, son of the Robert Corry Kerrs, of Montclair, N. J.

Wedding Today.

Only members of the two families are attending the ceremony, taking place at noon in the Church of the Ascension, with the Rev. Dr. H. Boyd Edwards officiating.

The bride is being given in marriage by her uncle, Alexander McGunnegle. She is wearing an autumn costume of brown bagheera, a brown felt hat, and a corsage of gardenias.

Her matron of honor is Mrs. Richard Leland Thompson, of Concord, N. H., and the best man is the bridegroom's brother, Robert Empsoll Kerr.

After a New England honeymoon, Mr. Kerr and his bride will be at home in Neville street by mid-October.

Delma Ramaley Married to R. C. Jones

At a very pretty small wedding at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Ramaley, of Graham boulevard, Wilkinsburg, their daughter, Miss Delma Ramaley, became the bride of Ruel Charles Jones, son of Mrs. Nathaniel J. Jones, of Montoursville, Pa. Only the immediate families and a few friends were there, and the Rev. Dr. F. Dean Miller, of Bradford, Pa., officiated, assisted by the Rev. Albert C. Busch, of Calvary Presbyterian Church. Mrs. J. C. Spenser played the wedding music.

Before a screen of cibotium ferns on either side of which were cathedral tapers in Italian candelabra, Dr. Ramaley gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory satin, fashioned in Empire mode, and her veil of tulle cascaded from a Juliet cap of rose point lace. She carried a sheaf of Madonna lilies.

Mrs. Lester M. Collins was the matron of honor, and wore a gown of beige lace trimmed in Kolinsky and her bouquet was of bronze hued dahlias. Miss Rae Bachmann, as maid of honor, wore powder blue lace and carried sunset dahlias. Walter Cottam served as best man.

At the reception and dinner, the bride's table was decorated in crystal and white, centered with roses. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will be at home after November 10 in Princeton boulevard, upon returning from a honeymoon in the east.

Mr and Mrs. Lester M. Collins gave the rehearsal dinner in their home in Murrayhill avenue on Wednesday evening.

Mary Elizabeth Scott New Assistant at 'Y.W.'

Miss Mary Elizabeth Scott, is

Miss Scott

the new metropolitan assistant secretary of the Pittsburgh Young Women's Christian Association. Miss Scott was formerly on the staff of the national board.

Illusions and Makeup Topics of Drama Talk

A demonstration of stage make-up, including an explanation of practical devices by means of which stage illusions of variations in character are created, will be part of the drama institute to be given in the College Club November 1 under auspices of the Pittsburgh Drama League.

The lecturer will be Dr. Carl Cass, director of the Pitt Players, who is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and who received his master's degree from the University of Wisconsin, choosing makeup as the subject of his thesis. Reservations for the institute are being received by Mrs. T. C. Clifford and Mrs. Joseph Kunkel.

Dinner to Be Given By Pi Lambda Theta

Delta Chapter of Pi Lambda Theta, women's national honorary education fraternity, will hold its first dinner meeting of the fall season on Tuesday evening in Heinz House on the University of Pittsburgh campus. Miss Maude Slee is in charge of dinner arrangements.

Miss Harriet Carter, guest speaker, will talk on Russia. She is head of the geography department of the Frick Training School, and has just returned from a summer in Russia. She will illustrate her talk with slides and movies.

Miss Ethel Rae Magoon Married to Al Hinkes

Charles Magoon, of Hobart street, Squirrel Hill, announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Ethel Rae Magoon, to Al Hinkes, son of Mr and Mrs M. Hinkes, of Jackson street, which was solemnized Sunday, September 4, in the B'nai Israel Synagogue, with Rabbi B. A. Lichter officiating.

Pittsburghers Guests At New York Hotel

Among the recent arrivals at the Hotel New Weston, in New York, are J. S. Euwer, Joseph C. Armstrong, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. Mackrell, R. A. Goshon, J. G. Johnson and J. F. Duddy.

Raphael Guild to Open Season With Card Party

Mrs. P. B. Kearns, vice president of the Raphael Guild, will open the fall season with a card party Wednesday at 3715 Penn avenue.

Turtle Creek Club Opens 33rd Year at Reception

The thirty-third year of the Turtle Creek Woman's Club was begun last night with a reception in honor of the president, Mrs. Paul Graham, in Mrs. E. H. Anderson's home, Monroeville road. Neighboring clubs and the state and county club organizations were represented. Under the direction of Mrs. C. C. Johnston a program was given that included piano numbers by W. A. Reger, solos and trios by Mrs. Reger, Mrs. Thomas Kirkpatrick and Miss Mary Austraw, with Mr. Reger accompanying. Warden Stanley P. Ashe, of the Western Penitentiary, spoke of prison life.

The club's next meeting will be with Mrs. G. M. McDonald, Bevington road, Edgewood Acres, the evening of October 28.

Agnes Hewitt Marries Frank H. Nicholson

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Hewitt, of Muskegon, Mich., announce the marriage at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the First Unitarian Church, Ellsworth avenue, of their daughter, Miss Agnes Hewitt, to Frank H. Nickolson, of Walnut street, Edgewood. The bride wore a simple traveling costume.

She is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and is a Kappa Kappa Gamma. Mr. Nilson is a Cornell University man.

Naomi Elizabeth Spill Weds Roger A. Waldorf

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer A. Spill, of Kennedy avenue, North Side, have just announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Naomi Elizabeth Spill, to Roger Arnold Waldorf, which took place on August 25, 1931, in Wheeling, W. Va.

COLOR AND FABRIC COMBINATION FEATURES IN LATEST MODELS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 1. — The combination of two colors or two materials in one costume seems to be this year's recipe for smart clothes in Paris. A large percentage of all the models paraded in recent fashion openings on Rue de la Paix were of two-color or two-fabric persuasion.

VELVET DRESSES appear on evening dresses of marocain; crepe de chine makes the yokes, sleeve to and sashes on dresses or he woolen homespun; tweed s show vestees of breitschwantz. Red-and-black is one of the favorite color combinations, but there are dozens of other new color alliances—dark red with light red, wine red with purplish blue, brown with orange, deep mousey beige with black, and—newest of all—beige or gray with light blue.

BOTH COLOR and fabric combinations are outstanding in the collection of the designer Lucien Lelong. He has a way of his own in managing these combinations—the alliance between the two (either color or fabric) is so closely made that the added color or fabric seems a part of the dress rather than a trimming.

THERE IS, for example, the green wool dress in today's sketch. At a distance it seems to be all of one material, but on closer examination the straight sleeves, the shoulder yoke and the little shoulder-cape are all of velvet. There are only two spots of color contrast in the entire costume—the two buttons of gold metal.

THE LELONG coat is a combination of black velvet with black breitschwantz. The buttons and buckles are metal.

Congress Group Fetes Vail Players

Since the Congress of Clubs is to have a benefit theater party at the Pitt on October 24 it was fitting that this organization should be the first to entertain the new Vail Stock Company members. An interest group, which has replaced the old ways and means committee, has been formed under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. H. Bricker, and it was this unit that gave a delightful luncheon yesterday to welcome the women newcomers to Pittsburgh's theatrical world.

Miss Shirley Booth, the leading woman, talked a bit about methods of study followed by stock players, and Miss Eila Ethredge described the building up of a stage wardrobe. Rummage sales are a source of riches for anyone looking for "character things," she said.

Liberty, Ingram P. T. A.'s Meet On Tuesday

The Rev. Dr. J. Frederick Virgin, guest speaker for the Liberty School Parent-Teacher Association on Tuesday evening, will discuss "The Value of a P. T. A. in the Community." J. J. Coll, principal of the school, will speak of the relation between the school and the association and the Taylor Allderdice quartet will furnish music.

Dr. W. H. Goodpastor will speak concerning "Your Child's Physical Makeup" at Tuesday evening's meeting of the Ingram Parent-Teacher Association.

Fulton Parent-Teacher Association, of which Mrs. George Morse is the newly elected president, will begin its season with a tea at the school on October 7.

Mrs. Challant Addresses Carnegie Woman's Club

Officers of the Carnegie Woman's Club, headed by Mrs. Fred Heathcote, greeted members and guests of the club in the United Presbyterian Church yesterday. Visiting presidents brought the good wishes of their clubs and Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, district president of the State Federation, gave an interesting club talk, with "Roads" as her subject. Music was furnished by Robert Owrey, with Frank Kennedy at the piano.

Sweet Briar Alumnae Benefit on October 18

Duplicate contract will be played at the benefit bridge party the Sweet Briar Alumnae Club will hold October 18 in the Hotel Schenley.

Mrs. J. J. Bailey and Mrs. R. J. Burns, of the Schenley Bridge Club, will direct the playing. The chairman for the event is Miss Dorothy Keller, aided by Mrs. W. Lusk.

Miss Willa Ro[illegible] Being Marrie[illegible] In Church

Lebanon, [illegible] comes the bride of Julius L[illegible] ward Davis, of Wilmington, N. C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwar[illegible] L. Davis, of Wilmington.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is wearing a gown of white wedding ring velvet, made on princess lines, with a train, and her viel of princess and duchess lace is finished with a cap of lace caught with orange blossoms. She is carrying a white missal with a marker of lilies of the valley and bouvardia.

Mrs. W. M. Wilkes, of New York, as her sister's matron of honor, is wearing champagne velvet made with long sleeves and short train, and the bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Davis, a sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. F. M. Wise, another sister of the bride, are wearing champagne velvet made with short sleeves and brief trains. They all are wearing turbans to match their gowns, with tiny veils and are carrying fall flowers.

Mrs. Davis is wearing black velvet with a matching turban and shoulder spray of orchids.

Everett Huggins, of Wilmington, is the best man, and ushers include Rupert Irwin, two brothers of the bride, George and Robert F. Ross, Jr., and W. M. Wilkes brother-in-law of the bride.

There is a reception and dinner in the Keystone Athletic Club after the ceremony, with decorations in green and white and white lillies and chrysanthemums on the bridal table.

Mr. Davis and his bride will be at home in Mt. Lebanon after a honeymoon in Asheville, N. C.

HARPSTER SECOND SCOT TO COACH FOE

ONE REASON WHY Geneva was expected to prove a troublesome opponent for Carnegie Tech in today's football game at the Stadium was the fact that Covenantor coach, Howard Harpster, is a former Tartan star. Naturally, Harpster knows all about the Steffen-Waddell system and many of the Scot plays still in use, and it was figured that that knowledge would enable him to break up much of the Plaid strategy. It was an unusual experience for Carnegie to face a foe coached by one of her own sons, Harpster being only the second alumnus ever encountered in that role. The one other was Dwight Beede, who was coach of Westminster when the Skibos met the Titans in 1927 and 1928. Western Reserve was not played last year when John Dreshar was one of the coaches at the Cleveland school. Reserve will be met next Saturday, but Dresnar has withdrawn. Few other ex-Carnegie players have ever gone in for coaching, except at preparatory schools.

Howard Harpster

Pitt, on the other hand, has faced many teams coached by former Panthers, including Lafayette under Jock Sutherland; Allegheny and Lafayette under Herb McCracken; Allegheny under Tom Davies; Geneva under Jack Sack; Grove City under Charley Bowser; Thiel under Tommy Holleran; Washington and Lee and Duke under Jimmy DeHart, and Cincinnati under George McLaren. Penn, under Harvey Harman, is on this season's schedule. W. & J. was played under a former assistant Pitt coach, Andy Kerr, and this year Stanford will be encountered under an old Panther mentor in the person of Pop Warner.

OLD JACK QUINN finally may have reached the end of his string in the big leagues and may not be back with the Dodgers next year, but certainly there was nothing in his record for 1932 to indicate that he had outlived his usefulness.

Quinn kept a record of his bullpen duties, and it shows that in addition to being tossed into 42 games as a relief hurler, he warmed up in the bullpen on 63 other occasions when he was not called into action. Therefore he pitched in the bullpen exactly 105 times.

THE VALUE OF Babe Ruth as baseball's great[est] drawing card was clearly shown again during the campaign [just] ended by the falling off in attendance at Yankee games when he w[as] out of the lineup.

Billy Evans, general manager of the Ind[ians] says that Ruth's absence from the last three-game series th[ere] cost the box office there $12,000, or $4,000 [per] game. Figuring on a basis of 145 playing days, Evans estimates Babe draws $580,000 yearly.

IT WAS AN ex-[re]sident and former resident of this district who discovered Lou Wa[ne]ke and brought him up to the big show. Patsy Fluherty, Cub scout, spotted the young pitcher in 1929 in the Cotton States League, to which Shreveport had farmed him, and on Patsy's recommendation the Bruin management bought Warneke for $10,000. Flaherty, a former southpaw hurler who made the quick pitch a specialty, resided in Carnegie for many years. He came to the Pirates in 1900 in the big merger with Louisville. After several trips to the minors and a period with the White Sox, Patsy returned to the Bucs in 1904. Following the 1906 season he was traded to the Boston Nationals with Claude Ritchey and Clarence Beaumont for Second Baseman Ed Abbaticchio, of Latrobe.

Bill Dickey

BILL DICKEY, starring behind the plate and at bat for the Yankees in the title series, turned out to be a gold mine though obtained for a comparative song. He cost the Yank owners only $12,500 when they took him off the Jackson club, of the Cotton States League, in 1927.

Washington offered $25,000 for Dickey before he had caught a ball for New York, but Miller Huggins, then manager of the Yankees, turned it down with the prediction that Bill would become one of the greatest catchers of his time. Dickey has fulfill the prophecy. A six-figure offer wouldn't get him now.

THE POWER OF the Yankee attack with which the Cub pitchers are trying to cope is best illustrated by the records for the regular season in the department of runs driven home. The six .300 hitters in the daily lineup—Gehrig, Ruth, Combs, Dickey, Chapman and Lazzeri—knocked in 643 tallies.

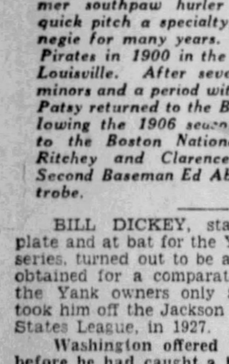
This means that Joe McCarthy has six sluggers who boast the extraordinary average of 107 runs punched across the plate. Imagine half a dozen swatters of that caliber in one lineup. To show the difference between the two series clubs in run-producing power, it need only to be pointed out that the five .300 hitters on the Cub roster drove in only 288 tallies for the year, an average of 57.

CRIP TOOMEY, who was one of the University of California's star backs for part of the period from 1920 through 1924, when Andy Smith coached the Bears to 42 victories and four ties without a defeat, sees no present-day defense to compare with that of the "wonder" team of 1920. As evidence of its power, he recalls that during the entire season only three enemy runners got as far as the safety man. Toomey himself was the safety man, and he says he had to make only one tackle against Stanford, one against Washington, and one in the New Year's Day game against Ohio State at Pasadena, when Pete Stinchomb got away.

THERE WILL BE no indoor fighting by Max Schmeling the coming winter. He hasn't fought indoors since he met Johnny Risko in 1929 and fears that it would hurt his style and form to return to it. He'll be ready for an outdoor match in February after he has spent the holidays in Germany.

At that time Schmeling probably will be the headliner at a show in Miami, and the plan is to match Max Baer and Primo Carnera for a New York card on December 8, the winner to get the February shot at the German.

PITT FOOTBALL FOLLOWERS, remembering the rise of Joe Donchess in the season of 1927, are wondering if Lou Wojcihovski, present sophomore terminal candidate from Weston, W. Va., will repeat the leap of Donchess to gridiron fame.



Lou Wojcihovski

Wojcihovski, in his attempt to beat out Ted Dailey for a varsity berth at end this season, has the same possibility that existed five years ago for the then obscure wingman who was to scale the all-America heights in 1928 and 1929.

THE WESTON LAD has to beat out a shifty, experienced end specialist, who makes up in smartness and speed for what he may lack in weight and height. Donchess, it will be recalled, had to get past Felix Demoise, Greensburg veteran. Joe, much like Wojcihovski in the respect of being big and rawboned, succeeded at the undertaking and helped in the making of a great team for Pitt. Now, if Wojcihovski can repeat, Panther aaherents are pleased to believe that it will presage another such year for the Sutherlands. Lou has all the physical attributes toward the making of a good end—height, weight and speed. He lacks experience, but to make up partly for that deficit he has an unusually keen love for the game and learns quickly. He will bear watching.

ROOT TO FACE PIPGRAS ON MOUND

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Like weary warriors new-born at the feel of the homeland under their feet, the Chicago Cubs rose in their native haunts of Wrigley Field today to face a fresh onslaught of the New York Yankees, as the world series, injected with new life and vigor, moved into its second phase.

Undismayed by two crushing defeats of their beloved warriors in the opening conflict in New York, the worshipping faithful of the Bruin clan rallied to an all but hopeless cause with the zest of zealots. To add to the excitement, Franklin D. Roosevelt and his presidential campaign party were scheduled to view the show.

Every reserved seat in Wrigley Field was sold, throngs waited in line for the early morning sale of 13,500 bleacher seats and 3,500 standing room tickets, and there was every indication that a crowd of 50,000, loyal as only Chicago crowds can be, was the least to expect for the third battle of the championship series.

ROOT CUB HOPE

The spearhead of that almost fantastic Cub hope was the veteran side-arm fast ball pitcher, Charley Root, the nominee of Manager Charley Grimm for the task of holding in check the bats of Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth, Bill Dickey, and all the rest of the marauding Yankees who battered down Guy Bush, Burleigh Grimes and Bob Smith, 12 to 6 in the opening game, clubbed young Lon Warneke into 5-to-2 defeat in the second, and left the entire Bruin array with a mild case of shell shock.

It was Root who might have been the hero of the opening game of the 1929 world series between the Cubs and the Philadelphia Athletics but for the fact that he happened to oppose a pitching wizard for a day, ancient Howard Ehmke.

There was little possibility of such a happening today, although Joe McCarthy had named the veteran George Pipgras as his choice to carry on the masterful pitching performances of Charley Ruffing and Lefty Gomez. Back in the glamorous days of the Yankee world series battle of 1926, 1927 and 1928, Pipgras won two post season battles and never has met defeat in world championship play.

Benefited by an enforced day's rest the Cubs were obviously heartened by the demonstration of loyalty and affection that waited them here.

YANKS SEE SWEEP

While the Yankees, already possessors of a world series record for straight victories, now totaling 12, could see nothing ahead but another clean sweep. There were physical problems to take into consideration.

Wrigley Field, with short-sleeved crowds in the left-center field bleachers on a warm day, always has been the bane of left-handed hitters swinging against a right-handed, side-arm pitcher such as Root.

Southpaw clouters claim that they cannot follow the flight of the ball against that background.

The effect on the Yankees, of course, would be little short of disastrous if things worked out as the Cubs predicted. Five of the first six men in the Yankee batting order swing from the left side of the plate.

The prospect of a warm day, although there was a threat of cloudiness, assured the theory being put to a decisive test. From an impartial viewpoint it seemed that something, anyway, had to come to the aid of the Cubs if the issue were to be prolonged beyond the week-end.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: LIFE WITHOUT A HEART—The lancelet, a low vertebrate also called Amphioxus, is a strange little creature, having no skull, no limbs or fins, no paired eyes, no ears. There is a complete absence of a heart, and its blood vessels, which are few in number and of the most simple structure, carry a fluid which is entirely colorless.

HOMER BRINGS MILLERS WIN

NEWARK, Oct. 1.—The Minneapolis Millers, champions of the American Association, and the Newark Bears, kings of the International League, left here last night for Minneapolis, where tomorrow they will resume their battling in the little world series with the Millers leading by two games to one.

A home run in the tenth inning yesterday, struck by Foster Ganzel, Miller third baseman, gave the Millers a 2-to-1 decision in the third game of the series. The game was a hurler's duel between Dutch Henry, of the Millers, and Pete Jablonowski, of the Bears. Joe Hauser, Minneapolis home run star, rapped a homer in the seventh inning to give his team the lead, only to have Charley Hargreaves, Bear catcher, hit a homer in the last half of the same inning to knot the count. The score:

Pitt Meets W. Va. Foe At Morgantown

game, the contest of 1909, resulted in a tie. Today, Pitt rules a strong favorite to win again, for the Mountaineers got off to a sorry start last week, losing to Duquesne in Pittsburgh, while Pitt, although the entire 1931 line is missing, is touted as being almost as powerful as it was last year.

W. VA. STAR OUT

What slight hopes the Mountaineers did hold for a reversal of form and a win over Pitt today were sent crashing this week when Wilbur Sortet, veteran end, suffered a leg injury that will keep him on the sidelines at least for a month. Goodwin, the other wing, was hurt in the Duquesne game and though he probably will start today, he is in far from tiptop trim.

The Panthers are not in any too good shape. It looks like both Capt. Reider and Joe Tormey will be on the bench. Reider, who suffered a stomach injury in the Ohio-Northern tussle, was able to work out this week, but Coach Sutherland hesitates to use him unless absolutely necessary today. Tormey has been suffering from a severe cold all week and will keep the Bulldog company on the bench. Shotwell, a junior, is set to take Tormey's place at center, with Mike Sebastian in at right halfback for Reider.

Otherwise, Coach Sutherland is expected to start the same eleven that was in action for the first kickoff against Ohio Northern. Last-minute shifts may toss new men in at left end and left guard, but the combination of Skladany and Dailey at the wings; Cuba and Hoel at the tackles; Hartwig and Onder as the guards; Shotwell at center and Bob Hogan, Warren Heller, Izzy Weinstock and Sebastian in the backfield is the one most likely to take the field today. Lou Wojcihovski may get Dailey's job at end and Kenny Ormiston will be the lad to replace Hartwig at guard if Sutherland so decides.

LINEUP IN DOUBT

Coach Greasy Neale, who has effected some backfield shifts since last week, is hard pressed for ends and is not definitely committed to a starting pair. Schweitzer and Vargo loom as the tackle probabilities, with Anderson and Tubs at the guards. Either Schwartzwalder or Wright will be at center, with the speedy sophomore, Eck Allen, Harry Marker, Thomas and Canich in the backfield.

It is West Virginia's aerial game that Pitt is concerned over most today, as the Mountaineer running attack, a mild sort of weapon at best last year, when the Mountaineers were slaughtered in Pittsburgh, 34 to 0, does not appear to have improved to any great extent. At least, it did not show to advantage against Duquesne.

On the other hand, West Virginia must stop Sutherland's power thrusts at the tackles, the well-timed Pitt reverses and triple passes and have an antidote on hand for the dangerous Reider-to-Heller, or Sebastian to either of the two, forward passing game. This department of Pitt's offensive did not click well last Saturday but the Panthers made no effort to be subtle with their heaving and handled the ball carelessly. They'll be hot today.

Despite the disappointing start made by the Mountaineers last week, Graduate Manager of Athletics Harry Adam Stansbury expects a crowd numbering between 25,000 and 30,000 for today's tussle. Western Pennsylvania will provide its share of the turnout.

DISTRICT GRID CARD FULL

A program of six games supports the Pitt-West Virginia and Carnegie Tech-Geneva contests, headliners of the tri-state and West Virginia college football schedule for today.

At Washington, Pa., West Virginia Wesleyan and Wash.-Jeff open their respective campaigns with the Presidents favored to win, and by a greater score than marked their 14-to-0 triumph over the Bobcats a year ago. Wesleyan, minus the great Cliff Battles and Red Crites, is experienced but light.

Bethany and Marietta go it at Bethany, where the Bisons will inaugurate a new policy of free admissions. Penn State starts off on another season, this one cut to seven games, by taking on Lebanon Valley at State College. The California State Teachers are hosts to the Bloomsburg Teachers at California and Indiana Teachers and Lock Haven clash at Indiana. Slippery Rock plays at Waynesburg.

Davis-Elkins, defeated last week by Geneva, is set for a comeback today at the expense of West Liberty. This game is booked for Wheeling.

Tomorrow St. Vincent meets Canisius at Buffalo in a game originally scheduled for today.

PLAID BATTLES HARPSTER'S GENEVANS

head football coaches of the Plaid.

GRAHAME STAR

Harpster is the successful coach of the Covenanter eleven of Geneva. He comes here with an impressive victory over Davis and Elkins in his opening game and with a forward-passing threat in Art Grahame, his quarterback, and Cliff Aultman, end, which figures to score against any team it can outsmart. They say Grahame is a reincarnation of Harpster himself—and who can forget the Harpster who led Carnegie's hosts against Notre Dame, Pitt, New York University and other serious opposition?

Grahame is a sterling field general, a fine passer, kicker and ball carrier, and Aultman is a receiver of passes par excellence.

Against this combination, Carnegie sends an untried team. Almost anything may happen. A loyal rooter for Carnegie at all other times, Harpster will be aiming for its downfall this afternoon. The Tech coaches hold him in high esteem as a wily football man, and they are prepared for a battle of wits. Harpster knows just what Tech has; they know only that from their protege they may expect the worst. A Tech defeat in its opening game would be a catastrophe for the Tartans, yet it is not without the realm of possibility, or even probability. A lot depends upon which team gets the jump—and Harpster ever was a genius at getting the jump on the opposition.

HOW THEY'LL LINE UP

Tech's opening lineup will present Angelo Bevevino at quarterback, Spisak and Co-Captain Kavel at the halves, and Joe Mihm, former Schenley High School star, at fullback. Mihm is close to 200 pounds in weight and hits the line hard. Stewart and Tesser will be at the ends, Croft and Forsman at the tackles, Co-Captain Sample and Burzio at the guards and Red Jones at center.

Aultman, the forward-passing target, will be at left end for the visitors, with Ifft playing the other terminal. McKee and Capt. Cooper are the tackles, Gramley and Howell the guards and Rodemeyer the center. With Grahame in the backfield will be Johnston and Robbins at the halves and Mel at fullback.

The Tartans will boast a slight advantage in both the line and backfield, and will rely somewhat upon overpowering the Geneva squad in rushing power to offset the more open game of the invaders. If they fall in this, the Harpster aggregation's chances are most roseate.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED

A good-sized crowd is expected to sit in on the spectacle, with the Harpster vs. Carnegie duel playing no small part in making the affair a drawing card.

Two hundred and fifty unemployed men will be guests of the home team at today's game. Tickets for their use have been distributed through relief agencies.

The Geneva squad is scheduled to arrive in Pittsburgh just before game time and will go direct to the Stadium.

N. Y. Has Cubs Down to Root Of Slab Staff

By NICK ALTROCK
Baseball's Comedian

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Well, they are going to have a change of scenery for the world series today, if that will do the Cubs any good.

Personally, I don't think it makes any difference to the Yankees what centerfield billboards they bash the ball up against.

Nick Altrock

When you're going good, the site of the contest is as incidental as a traveling salesman's expenses. If the Battle of Lookout Mountain had been fought in the Grand Canyon the result would have been the same.

It looks like Charley Root will do the Cubs' slab work for pastime No. 3. That means Manager Grimm started his world series pitching with a Bush and now he is down to the Root. It took a whole package of seeds for me to grow a gag like that.

YANKS SITTIN' PRETTY

The Yankees will shoot Pipgras or Allen at the Cubs. Joe McCarthy is sitting prettier and can take a few chances now. Even if they dropped the third contest by Referee—D. W. Very. Umpire—C. J. McCarty. Head linesman—A. W. McMillan. Field judge—Earl Cavanaugh. Time of quarters—15 minutes.

Coach Elmer Layden, of Duquesne, paraded most of the manpower he hopes to use against Pitt next week against Grove City at Forbes Field last night and the Grovers wound up by being caught in the traffic. They managed to escape more than one entanglement in the first half, but were trampled in the second. The Dukes won their third game in as many starts, 26 to 0.

A fair turnout braved the wintry breezes that swished in and out of Forbes Field to witness the first meeting since 1922 between varsity elevens from Duquesne and Grove City. The attendance did not exceed 10,000.

SECOND TEAM STARTS

Coach Layden crossed the boys by starting his seconnd eleven. This combination, with DeCoster, McDonald, Marin and Strutt in the backfield, went right to work and punched over a score early in the initial period. Then Layden sent in his regulars. The first stringers found the Grovers on their toes and received no better than an even break in the second period. In fact, the Crimson unleashed a drive that carried deep into Duquesne territory in the second period, but when they discarded their aerial game, which was its big treat all evening, for a running attack, they cracked up on the stout Red and Blue defense.

The third and fourth periods were all Duquesne. Grove City, lacking capable reserves, was unable to match the steady stream of substitutes that Coach Layden kept pouring into the contest, and at last, the tired and worn Grovers cracked under the strain. Too, the left side of the Mercer Countian's line failed to hold up as did the right, and it was through this portal that the Dukes paraded to victory.

MARIN TALLIES FIRST

Steve Marin tallied the first touchdown on a smash at center. Jim McDonald, sensational Duquesne halfback, chased 56 yards in the third period for the second and came right back with a run of 18 for the third. The fourth score resulted in a long pass, DeLuca to Sepsi, with the latter pulling in the ball far down the field and crossing the goal line unmolested.

Standing out in bold relief in the Grove City defeat was the splendid all-round play of Buck Tomko, former Scott High, of North Braddock, football and basketball star. Tomko, in at right end, played a sensational game on the defense. He was seldom out of the play, and he wrecked more than one well-intended Night Rider drive at his position. He was assisted ably in the line by Capt. Larry Critchfield, George Foti and Saul McCoy.

REVERSES WORRY DUKES

Koma, Grover fullback, and Quarterback Thomas did all they could in the backfield. Until they became so worn they hardly could step, the Grover backs gave the Dukes plenty of worry and trouble with their reverses, run from the double-wing back setup. Unless the Dukes improve their defense against this sort of attack by next week, their secondary defense men are going to be in for a long, hard afternoon against Pitt.

Duquesne rolled up a total of 14 first downs to six for Grove City. Frequent fumbles in the third and fourth periods kept the Crimson pretty much on the spot and set the stage for at least two of the Duquesne touchdowns.

Vines and Bride Leave on Honeymoon

PASADENA, Cal., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines, Jr., national singles tennis champion, and Miss Verle Lowe, of Pasadena, were married last night at the bride's home by the Rev. H. H. Stranburg, Methodist pastor. Only intimate friends and relatives attended.

Vines and his bride will leave today for Santa Barbara on a five-month honeymoon. Mrs. Vines will accompany the tennis marvel on a Davis Cup team tour of Australia, New Zealand and Japan.

Rocky Kansas Bows In Comeback Try

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Rocky Kansas, former lightweight champion of the world, essayed a comeback here last night in a six-round bout with Joe Tripp, rugged Rochester fighter, but Trippe easily won five of the six rounds and the decision.

Trippe dropped Rocky with a left to the chin in the second round for a count of eight, and a hook to the same spot in the third again upset Kansas.

The Oakland Ramblers are seeking football games in the junior lightweight class. Teams wishing to book the Ramblers may do so by calling Mayflower 3735 after 7 p. m. and ask for Harry.

CUBS REACH ROOT--NICK

accident, the Yanks can scare the Cubs out of the championship just holding batting practice before the next two games.

At that, you've got to give Chicago credit. The folks here are still optimistic about the Cubs. For a city that leaves its cops, firemen and school teachers unpaid, it's easy to enthuse over a ball team that comes home with a basket of goose eggs.

This town is surely a glutton for excitement. This year it's had the Republican and Democratic conventions, and now it's got a world series. The only other thing they could ask for is the Battle of Jutland in Lake Michigan.

Around among us experts, the carbuncle of conversation is the way Babe Ruth is hobbling through the series. There's an old proverb that as Ruth goes, so go the Yankees. If that was the case, the Yanks would be on their way to the Old Soldiers' Home.

The duration of the series depends on somebody stopping Gehrig. But Lou is like that all-American girl in the song. He's nitro-glycerine in New York, a fiend in Philadelphia, a clouter in Cleveland and a demon in Detroit. And he's liable to be a big shilleleh-shaker in Chicago.

Charley Grimm's main worry today is to get a pitcher that isn't wild, can last nine innings and be good to the last out-drop.

That sterling pitching staff we heard about before the series opened needs plenty of silver polish right now.

Westminster Bows To Geo. Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The George Washington University football team defeated Westminster College, 24 to 0 last night, before a crowd of 6,000.

Three touchdowns in the lead and with little chance of being overhauled by the uninspired play of the Pennsylvanians, the Colonials confined their attack strictly to running plays, disdaining to make use of their highly touted overhead attack. The lineup:

G. WASH—24.		WESTMINSTER—0.
Mulvey	L. E.	Leyshock
B. Parrish	L. T.	Dishong
Stewart	L. G.	Rose
Dike	C.	Bloker
Hickman	R. G.	Hollander
Baird	R. T.	(C) Behfus
Chambers (C)	R. E.	Ellington
Fenion	Q. B.	Arrowsmith
Strayer	L. H.	Hunneke
F. Parrish	R. H.	Staples
Kriemelmeyer	F. B.	Scarborough

Score by periods:

George Washington	12	6	0	6	—24

Touchdowns—Fenion, Kriemelmeyer, Carter 2. Substitutes—George Washington: Pearce, Edwards, Carter, McCarver, Blackstone, Galloway, McKinnis, Steele, Young, Nielson; Westminster: Sweeney, Franklin, Wilhelm, Lalbuone, Pait, Brown, Young, Straw, Ketterer, Burry, Andrews. CLASS AA GRID BATTLES LEAD SCHOOL CARD

By JULIUS LEVIN

Three members of the City League go out of town today for football engagements. Peabody, one of the favorites in the Section I race, invades Johnstown to meet the Flood City team; South is the attraction at Altoona, and Oliver opposes Turtle Creek Union in the Union High Stadium.

Featuring the Saturday program, however, are two Double A Conference engagements. Monessen and McKeesport tangle at McKeesport, and New Kensington and Norwin clash at Irwin. These contests are the first league engagements for the four elevens involved.

DOUBLE A TEAMS MEET

Four other Double A teams are listed for action this afternoon in non-league contests. Youngwood is opposed to Greensburg at Greensburg, Uniontown invades Clairton to meet the 1931 Class A champion, Rankin is the attraction at Wilkinsburg and Latrobe is the Jeannette opponent at Jeannette.

Two important Class A duels that will appeal to the scholastic fans are scheduled at Donora and Ambridge. California and Donora, two of the strongest teams in the Monongahela Valley, lock horns at Donora, while Mt. Lebanon and Ambridge, both undefeated, battle at Ambridge.

Beaver Falls, regarded as the strongest contender for the Beaver Valley championship, will attempt to keep its record for the season unscathed in its contest with Braddock at Beaver Falls.

Other good attractions in Western Pennsylvania finds New Brighton at Midland; Carnegie at Canonsburg; Redstone at Hurst; Homestead at Swissvale, and Harbrack at Stowe Township.

WESTINGHOUSE BEATEN

Allegheny and Taylor Allderdice provided the upsets in the City League tussling yesterday. The North Siders defeated Westinghouse, 6 to 0, in the Westinghouse Stadium, when a deflected forward pass was caught by Muzyk, Allegheny left end, who chased 30 yards for a touchdown.

Schenley was held to a scoreless tie by Allderdice, with the Belle-fielders making the biggest scoring threat when they worked the ball to the three-yard line as the first half ended. Carrick gave the dope bucket a boot by beating Langley, 7-0, Hahn, Carrick left halfback scoring in the third period on a plunge through the line.

South Hills rolled over Perry, 12-0, with Kopp, Blue and White right halfback, scoring both touchdowns, one in the first and fourth periods.

Fifth Avenue, playing Weirton at Steubenville, was trounced, 47 to 0.

New Castle recorded a decisive victory over Charleroi at New Castle, 25 to 0. Kolodjeski, New Castle fullback, suffered a broken leg in the third period. The victors scored single touchdowns in the first and second periods and two in the fourth.

SCOTT HIGH TIED

Crafton presented a stubborn defense against Scott High's attack last night at North Braddock and held Johnny Reed's eleven to a scoreless deadlock. Duquesne tallied in every period to beat Munhall, 26 to 0, with Lemak, Duquesne left halfback, scoring three touchdowns and featuring in the victor's aerial attack.

In other district games, Coraopolis defeated Avalon, 27-0; Glassport downed Fayette City, 37-0; McKees Rocks and Etna drew, 0-0; Edgewood defeated Shady Side Academy, 19-0; Scottdale nosed out Brownsville, 6-0; McDonald trimmed Trinity, 7-0; Beaver walloped Sewickley, 33-0; the Duquesne University Preps defeated Millvale and Dormont took over Bellevue, 6-0.

Local Casting Club Tourney Tomorrow

The Pittsburgh Casting Club will hold its first annual championship tournament at Lake Louise Carnegie in Highland Park tomorrow. Champions in five events will be crowned.

The tournament will get under way at 9 a. m. and will be concluded at 1 p. m.

C. W. Warg is president of the Pittsburgh Casting Club. The meet is open only to members of the Pittsburgh Casting Club.

RUTH PREDICTS SERIES FINAL IN CHICAGO

By BABE RUTH

Baseball's Highest Salaried Star

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—I do not expect that the world series will see any more of the Yankee Stadium, and I am voicing the opinion of every other member of the Yankee team when I say this. When the series started I predicted that we would win in six games. Things have happened since to make me feel that the series will not go beyond five, and probably no more than four.

Babe Ruth

Do not let me appear to be bragging about what we will do. I base my opinion on the fact that the Chicago pitching is not likely to be as tough for us in the next two games as it has been in the first two, and we won both. We didn't hit Bush hard and we did not get anything bigger than a single off Warneke. That sort of hitting is below the usual Yankee standard. I expect to see the boys break out here with some long hitting, and I do not think that Root and Malone will bother us as much as Bush and Warneke.

CUB TASK TOUGH

Then there is another reason. There is the handicap which those first two defeats impose on the Cubs. Several times it has happened that a team won a series after dropping the first game, but it has never happened in a seven-game world series that a team lost the first two games and then was able to win.

Look at it this way. Charley Grimm's team must beat us four out of the remaining five games to become world champions, and I don't think they can do it.

I recall that the 1921 Yankees, of which I was a member, won the first two games and then lost the series, but that year we played a nine-game series, or until the team had won five games. The Giants beat us, five games to three. So you see what a handicap the Cubs face because of those first two defeats.

All our players are in fine trim and we still have plenty of high-class pitching ready to toss at the Cubs. George Pipgras will pitch the third game today, and I look for Johnny Allen for the next one. Both have pitched fine ball during September—in fact Allen has been a steady winner since June, and he won 17 during the season against four defeats. Then we have Herb Pennock, Danny MacFayden and Walter Brown as starting possibilities, or ready to jump in if a game begins to get away. Ruffing will be ready to start again in the fourth game, if necessary. With all this reserve pitching at hand, I can't figure how we can lose.

I am sorry to hear that Mark Koenig may not be able to play in the game today or possibly in the other games. If we are to win we would rather beat the best team that the Cubs can put on the field.

SEES NO HANDICAP

I feel that the National Leaguers cannot afford to lose as good a hitter as Mark. But that is one of the tough breaks of the game.

I do not think that we are handicapped to any extent by the fact that most of us have never played in Wrigley Field. Players frequently do very well on strange fields. Just remember what Pepper Martin did last year when the Cardinals were playing those three games at Shibe Park. And Pepper was an absolute stranger there. The idea that a player cannot do well under such conditions is one of baseball's myths which lives on and on though it is exploded hundreds of times every season.

SCHMELING SAILS

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, sailed for Germany early today, probably not to return to these shores until after Christmas. Efforts are being made by Madison Square Garden to match Schmeling, who defeated Mickey Walker, with Max Baer, of California, for a fight here in January or February.

Harpster to Review Tech Game Monday

Howard Harpster, all-America quarterback at Carnegie Tech several seasons back, today pilots his Geneva College gridders against his alma mater at the Pitt Stadium. He will match wits with his old tutors, Judge Walter P. Steffen, advisory coach, and Bob Waddell, head coach of the Tartans.

In Monday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Harpster begins his season's series of three articles a week by reviewing this game. It should be an interesting story. His articles will appear every Monday, Wednesday and Friday during the remainder of the season, his fourth as a writer for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Hunk Anderson, Notre Dame coach, has been added to the staff of star football writers for readers of the Sun-Telegraph. Notre Dame plays both Pitt and Carnegie Tech again this fall. Other contributors are Pop Warner, whose Stanford team plays Pitt in the closing game of the season here; Eddie Casey, Harvard coach; Alonzo Stagg, Chicago coach, and Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech coach, who constitute the All-America Board of Football.

Harry Keck, sports editor, will report today's game between Tech and Geneva. Jess Carver will cover Pitt's game with its old rival, West Virginia University, at Morgantown, W. Va.

CRAWFORDS FACE STARS

The National League All-Stars and the Pittsburgh Crawfords will clash in two games this afternoon and evening at Greenlee Field.

Larry French is expected to work the afternoon tilt and Parmelee the night. Danny Taylor, Hack Wilson and Fredericks, of the Brooklyn Dodgers outfield, also are in the All-Stars' lineup.

Joe Williams will go to the mound for the Crawfords to make a second effort to stop the hard-hitting big leaguers. Radcliffe is slated to twirl the second game.

The first game will start at 3 o'clock, with bulletin reports of the world series game being given. The night game starts at 8:30.

In the third game of the series played at Altoona yesterday, the Crawfords got the edge in the games played to date by winning, 4 to 2.

French held the Negro club to eight hits in seven innings, but the Crawfords bunched them in the second and scored four runs, and this proved enough to win. Frederick hit a home run in the seventh. Danny Taylor kicked in with four hits. The score:

TELL IT TO SALLY

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By SALLY MAR

People Can Cure Themselves Of Being Too Sensitive

Are you "just so sensitive?"

Freda was, and she came weeping into this column to ask why folks picked on her and "hurt her feelings" all the time. She longed for friends, but she was "too sensitive" to let folks know it, for fear they'd think she was trying to "push herself" on them.

So she spent most of her time feeling sorry for herself, and wailing over her Crool Fate.

Is that what you're doing?

Then listen while Isabella tells you—and Freda—where to get off. She was one of those sensitive souls, herself, but—listen!

"Dear Sally—

"Well, is there room for me to get in a few words? I'd like to. I've just read Freda's letter about her terrible 'sensitiveness,' and I'd like to answer it.

"You see, Freda, everyone is sensitive. I was one of the worst. But I'm cured! Really, no matter what was said or done to me, I got my feelings hurt and went off by myself to cry. Of course I didn't gaze reproachfully at my tormenter and open the floodgates of tears right there. I had more sense than that. I wouldn't have been half so well liked as I was, or had half the invitations I got, if I had done that. I didn't show myself to be a cry-baby—but I really was.

"Even when some ugly rumors got circulated about me, I stood up and proved them to be wrong, and was cheered and loved for "facing the music." And don't you think those rumors hurt? They tore my heart! Even friends, too, can say thoughtless things that, if you taken them that way, can hurt dreadfully.

ASKED FOR REASON

"That's where you cried, Freda, and made folks think you were the bunk. I didn't do that when something of that sort happened. I'd shame the tormentor by laughing gayly and saying, 'What a sweet child!' But of course I resented it. I resented teasing. I was very unhappy.

"Then I met a fellow who asked me out. At first I liked him, and later realized I loved him. But I was unhappy because he seemed to go out of his way to tease me and 'hurt my feelings,' and I'll admit I showed him the way I felt. I would cry and get frantic, because he meant so much to me that I couldn't bear it, when he 'wasn't nice to me,' as I thought. Even my family thought he was awfully mean, because he teased me so terribly right in front of them.

"Then, one day, I got up the courage to ask him just why he always said and did things to 'hurt' me and my 'feelings.'

"Well, I got an answer—and how!

BECAME CURED

"He told me the same things you told Freda, and more. He'd only been teasing me in fun at first; then, when he saw the way I took it, he made up his mind to cure me of feeling that way, so he began to work on me.

"At first, when he told me, I got furiously angry; then I calmed down and 'looked at myself as others saw me'—as they'd been seeing me, no doubt, for a long time, in spite of my efforts to cover up how easily hurt I was. Well! It was some shock! And I began to realize that maybe the folks around me got their feelings hurt, too, and that I was just being a big baby. I resolved to think more about them and less about myself, and snap out of it. And I did.

I've sprouted a sense of humor, and now when he teases me, as he often does, I can laugh with him, even if the joke's on me. We are married. I'm cured. And for the first time in my life I'm really happy and enjoy living. It was easy, when I realized what a goof I was. "ISABELLA."

That's a grand letter, youngster! And here's to your spunk! Anybody with the gumption to look themselves over and take it on the chin can win, just as you did

Are you game to do it, Stranger?

DIANA—AND A HUNTING MORNING

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

The Hunting-Horn is thought to rouse the fire in the blood of the hunter the hottest on an autumn morning. When the summons to snuff out some harmless creature's life rings the sweetest in the hunter's ear is when the woods are painted gold and red and copper, and the lilac smoke of leaf-fires drifts on the wind.

But there's one who loves to hunt and does not take a life, for whom any old season will do, and most times her hunting is the most innocent and instinctive thing in the world. Diana of the Chase—the Eve side of the race—who hates to pass the least man in importance, and not make him hers, at least in loyalty and friendship. And, of course, his admiration is much appreciated! Any season is the same. And the faithful minion who trails at her heels has no choice, either.

A Young Man's Fancy is thought to turn to thoughts of a girl and Love, the aforesaid minion, or hunting hound, only in SPRING, when the violets and crocus encrust the grass, high white clouds ride the sky-sea, and lambkins play, then is his heart supposed to be at the tenderest. Only the sun of Spring is said to melt it.

But the young man in the Autumn hay-field is just as heart-soft for the feminine voice and figure as in Spring. His eyes are just as bright for the sight of waving hair under a beret and below that again a pair of girl-eyes, where the outer skin begins to be nipped with Fall's thin cold air, as they are in Springtime.

Hunting, in the game of Love, and Susceptibility in the game of Love, do not depend on Seasons.

NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

Eating Artichokes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have had no argument over the following question, but a friendly discussion with my wife tonight at dinner in a restaurant where she was served a whole artichoke, with the customary dressing, on a separate plate. The question is: Is it proper to use the fingers in eating an artichoke served whole, without any fork or other piece of cutlery? Would the really fastidious person eat only the heart, using the dinner fork?

Please answer this in your column as I am a consistent and enthusiastic reader.

MALE READER.

In eating the leaves of the artichoke, we use our fingers. One leaf at a time is peeled off, the tip nearest the stalk is dipped in melted butter or other sauce, and the edible portion of the leaf scraped off between the teeth. The remainder of the leaf (the larger portion of the leaf, of course) is laid on the plate.

After all the leaves are pulled off, the heart of the artichoke is revealed. This is eaten with the fork, or, if we prefer, with a small knife and fork. But only the fork is really necessary, a smaller fork than the dinner fork . . . the luncheon fork, say.

The person who likes artichokes . . . and I can't imagine anyone not liking this delicious vegetable! . . . wouldn't think of not eating the delicate white portion of the leaves, for they are a great delicacy. They can be eaten with carefulness, so that the fingers will not become very uncomfortable. And, of course, with correct service, a finger bowl is always placed with artichokes. If the finger bowl is not placed it is quite correct to ask the waiter for one.

Wearing His Pin

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am 17 years old and a young man has asked me to wear his pin. This does not necessarily mean anything serious, does it? Do you think I should accept his offer?

M.

The wearing of the pin doesn't mean anything unless the meaning is indicated by the young man when he asks you to wear the pin. Nowadays, this wearing of a pin, fraternity or any other kind, is fairly casual, and it is a symbol of an engagement only when the giver makes it that and the girl accepts it as that.

I don't know what to advise you about accepting this friendly offer. I know so well how proud girls are about wearing this sort of thing, and I like to have them have the innocent and charming joy of this delight. But, too, I've had so many questions, agonized questions, about the return of the pin when things don't turn out well or circumstances change . . . that I've become a bit cautious.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Family Bridge

Perhaps it is because husbands and wives play so much together that each member of this life partnership is inclined to regard the other as a rather undesirable Bridge partner. One reason frequently given is that they never hold cards together.

A lady, who has requested that she be anonymous, recounted a recent experience playing Bridge with her husband. Because of his firm belief that he and his wife never held hands that fit, they failed to reach even a game, when a Slam was easily available. The measure which prevented the reaching of the correct final contract was a bluff Double by one of the opposing players, coupled with an unusual Opening bid by the husband. The hands were:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The Wife
♠ A K J 10 3
♡ J 9 4
◇ A K Q J 4

The bidding:

Pass (4)	Pass

1—A much better bid with this hand would have been one club. A bid of three in a minor suit is not to be recommended, but if made, should show a long and unquestionably established suit.

2—A purely nuisance Double, which proves quite effective, as the sequel shows.

3—A Forcing Takeout. Partner may not pass until a game contract is reached. The lady bids four diamonds in preference to four spades because she visions Slam possibilities, and a bid of four spades, being a game bid, would not be a Force.

4—Partner disregards the essential requirement of a successful partnership. He passes a Forcing bid.

East's Opening lead was the club 9, upon which the 10 was played from Dummy. West played the King, and North ruffed with the diamond 4. The adverse trumps were then drawn, and North made all the tricks, being able to discard the heart and spade losers on Dummy's established clubs.

In explanation of the failure to keep the bidding open until game was reached, the husband explained that he did not think very much of his own Opening bid and could not vision his partner as holding such a strong hand after West had doubled for a Takeout. So strongly was he obsessed with the view that West held an extremely big hand that he felt it best to let well enough alone.

In sending in the story of the hand, the lady remarked that at the end of the session she was ready to give up Contract, but after a night's rest she felt more hopeful and was planning another game for that evening. In this she has much in common with many other players.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North, Dealer, bids one no-trump, East two diamonds. What should South bid, holding the following hand:

♠ A 6 4 2 ♡ 7 4 ◇ J 9 4 ♣ A 8 4 2

Answer: South should pass the first round of the bidding, since, although holding 2 honor-tricks, he does not hold a biddable suit, nor can he raise the no-trump bid as he does not hold a stopper in the diamond suit.

He should, therefore, pass and wait to hear further what his partner has to say.

Children and Money

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

The mother faced me belligerently. "What would you do with a 7-year-old boy who is a thief?" she wanted to know.

Well, first of all, I'd hesitate a long time before I'd call a child a thief. And in this case, events, long since forgotten, had made it seem to the child only a routine thing, to go to his mother's purse and extract a nickel for candy.

When he was an infant, Mother handed Sonny her purse and let him open it and pull out its contents to keep him quiet on the street car.

Later, when he had a small allowance, she often went to it and grabbed change for the milkman or grocery boy, saying nothing to the child, but often doing it where he could see the act. It was just the usual thing. Contents of her bocketbook held no significance to the boy except as playthings. Mother had no sense of HIS property rights when, without consulting him she took change from HIS store of money.

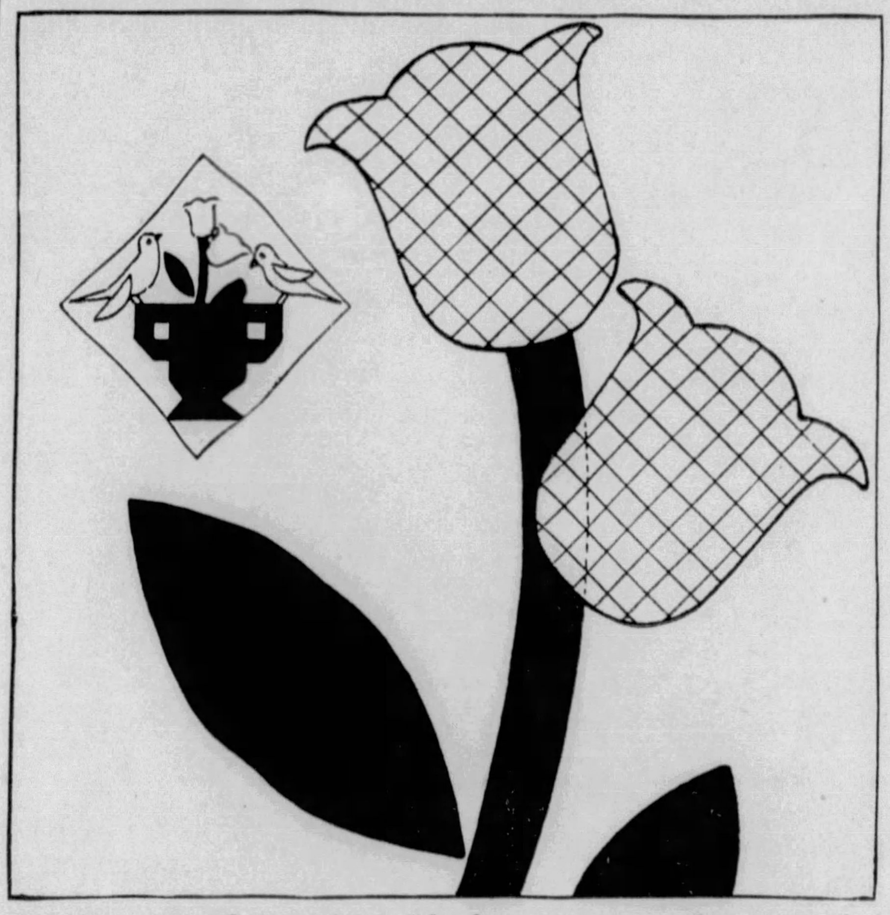
So why all the amazement, all the horror, when the 7-year-old boy nonchalantly went to Mother's source of supply and lifted a nickel?

In the light of his previous training and the attitude he'd been allowed to develop toward money and purses, it was quite a logical procedure, I'd say.

To prevent situations where the child may come under the harmful epithet "thief," begin in babyhood to build a wholesome respect for money and for the possessions of others. To do this, never allow a child to regard money or purse contents as toys. It is imperative that you respect HIS property rights if you expect him to ultimately respect yours or the rights of other people. Don't touch your child's money without asking him if you may, explaining why, and not only promising, but keeping your promise, to replace it.

Nancy Page Quilt Club

By Florence La Ganke



Garden Block Quilt -- Block 6 -- Canterbury Bells

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Garden Bouquet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page, in care of this paper.

Canterbury bells are always popular on quilts. One of the Nancy Page Quilt Club members told of a quilt or spread she had made which has a large spray of canterbury bells appliqued in the center of the spread. The flowers were held together with a large and graceful bow knot of blue.

Because canterbury bells come in various colors, Nancy suggested that these be made either in pale blue, in pale pink or lavender, or that one flower be made one color and the other flower be of a different hue. A most literal-minded member objected to having two flowers of different colors growing from the same stem, but Nancy reminded her that once more she was using an artist's privilege.

Then, too, she recalled the Magic Vine quilt, which had as many as 11 different flowers growing from one vine.

The block is ready for the applique when the large white triangle, cut 12½ by 12½ by 17½, had been seamed on to the triangle made of the pieced urn. The white triangle is plain until the birds and flowers have been appliqued upon it. They are placed according to the small inset drawing. The meek bird is almost hiding his head beneath one of the blossoms, but not so the saucy bird. He is pertly surveying his world and finding it good. The members followed the usual procedure.

First, they cut the pattern and directions from today's paper. Second, they traced the flower lightly in the correct placement on the white triangle.

Third, they made another tracing on a piece of lightweight cardboard.

Fourth, they pasted the original with directions into their Nancy Page scrap book (This may be made by following directions and patterns offered by this paper. Send for your copy if you do not already own it.)

Fifth, they cut the pasteboard pattern into its various parts.

Sixth, they laid these on the right pieces of material and cut them out, allowing one-quarter inch for turning under on all sides.

The bells are alike, so only one pattern need be cut.

The stem may be made from bias tape or green material similar to that used in leaves.

After turning under edges, basting and pressing, the pieces are pinned in place according to the light tracery made on the white triangle.

They are then appliqued with slanting, invisible hemming stitches. The birds are appliqued. And a sixth block is finished for the beautiful and increasingly admired garden bouquet quilt.

BACK BLOCKS SUPPLIED

In the event you have missed any of the Garden Bouquet Quilt blocks previously published in this paper please send 10 cents for each block missing. Also enclose stamped, addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, care of this paper.

Household Hints

Watch the remnant counter for material for the small child's everyday dress.

Empty cotton reels nailed to the kitchen wall make useful rustless pegs on which to hang damp towels and dishcloths.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Starving for Thirty Days One Way to Treat Colitis

Many medical words are seized upon by laymen and frequently misused. For example, the word "colitis" often is used with a mistaken notion of its meaning and applied to mild and rather vague intestinal disorders. Many a person thinks he is suffering from colitis when in reality the ailment is something of a different nature.

Dr. Copeland

I warn you that real colitis is something serious when neglected. It is an inflammation of the colon, the large intestine, caused by an infection.

Bacteria are always found in the large intestine, and when the tissues become irritated as a result of accumulated toxins or poisons, the bacteria increase in number. Then the mucous membrane or lining of the bowel is still more irritated.

Though worry, fatigue or severe emotional excitement may produce an attack of colitis, it is usually attributed to a faulty diet. When the diet is lacking in the natural foods and consists of large quantities of starch, sugar and meat, the number of intestinal bacteria is greatly increased, and the amount of poisons liberated by these bacteria is too great to be properly handled by the intestine.

The patient notices that his eliminations contain mucus and blood. These are the characteristic signs of colitis. The attacks sometimes come on in paroxysms. Abdominal pain, tenderness and discomfort may be present or absent.

This disease is often complicated by other adbdominal disturbances, such as chronic gall bladder disease, chronic appendicitis, or ulcers of the stomach or intestine. In these cases, the pain and discomfort are severe and varied in character.

Drugs and other methods of treatment are of little value in colitis. The most important thing to do is to correct the diet and manner of living.

Recent investigation shows that primitives who live outdoors and eat only natural foods never suffer from colitis, appendicitis, ulcers or gallstones. It has been noted, too, that cancer of these organs is rarely encountered in these people.

The diet should contain some foods that leave a residue in the intestine. These are, mainly, vegetables, cereals and fruits.

Some institutions caring for colitis patients recommend a 30-day "starvation diet." During this period water flavored with fruit juices is considered of chief importance. Tea, or water in which vegetables have been boiled, also is permitted. A moderate amount of exercises and daily enemas are given.

If you are suffering from colitis, never take a strong laxative. This is merely adding insult to injury. The bowel should be cleansed daily by warm irrigations, for which water heated to 110 or 115 degrees should be used, but not more than a pint at a time. Add one-half teaspoonful of salt to every pint of water used and after using the first pint let it escape before a second pint is used. Continue this until the returned fluid is clear. This treatment should be given daily.

..NNEY MAY ..T CHANCE WITH A'S

CHARLES J. DOYLE

Louis Finney, brother of Catcher Hal Finney, of the Pirates, may replace Al Simmons or George Haas in the Philadelphia Athletics' outfield. A younger yet bigger brother of the fleet Buccaneer receiver, Lou Finney is the sensation of the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League, which is ready to clinch the pennant of that circuit.

Hal's brother leads the league in base hits with 256, and he is batting .352. He is a lefthand batter. Portland is one of Connie Mack's farms. Mack sent Finney there last spring under an option. There are four boys in the Finney family who stand a chance of reaching the majors.

Simmons and Haas, along with Infielder Jimmy Dykes, were sold to the White Sox Wednesday.

EX-BUCS IN LIMELIGHT

Speaking of the Coast League, the performances of former Pirates are high spots in the race of the faraway circuit. Louis Koupal, who spent some time with the Buccaneers, has been a big help to the Portland club in its quest for the flag. Louis has copped 16 victories for the Beavers and he has lost but six games.

Emil Yde and Tom Sheehan the same two hurlers who twirled the deciding game of the successful Pirate pennant fight in 1925, have been mainstays for the Hollywood Stars as their club competed against Portland.

Many Pirates fans will hold the flag-clinching battle of 1925 in their memories. For one thing they quickly will recall the great double play executed by Glenn Wright which clinched the pennant for the Pirates were fighting Art Fletcher's Phils in a stubborn engagement in the Oakland Orchard. Yde carried his club into the ninth with his team leading 2-1.

WRIGHT CLINCHES FLAG

The Durable Dane appeared to be ready to settle the hash of the Quakers and thus win the flag when they uncorked two hits that put runners on third and second with nobody out. There was great confusion in the Pittsburgh bullpen as out of it stalked the huge form of Sheehan.

Big Tom worked carefully on the next batter and a foul fly was gathered in by Traynor. The next play was the blue ribbon event of a dramatic season. The batter drove a fly to short left close to the foul line. As Barnhart and Wright closed in on the falling sphere, Barney stepped aside for the boy with the rifle-shot whip. Wright grabbed the ball while his back was toward the plate, but his great arm sent the ball into Johnny Gooch's glove with the accuracy of a strike and Gooch tagged out the runner to assure the flag.

GIZZY WINNER OVER MARCUS

By JAMES MILLER

Battling Gizzy, the Donora autogiro, still is the proud holder of the city's lightweight boxing title. He outslapped the latest contender, Joe Marcus, of Braddock, in the 10-round main bout of the opening show at the Kapphan Arena on the North Side last night. The show drew almost $1,500.

The rivals started out like a couple of long lost brothers, clinching at every opportunity, but things began to enliven in the third round, when the Battler caught Marcus off balance with a sweeping right that drove Joe through the ropes. Marcus was up without a count, however.

In the very next round, Marcus evened the score by dropping Gizzy with a looping right to the jaw for a two count. Gizzy was woozy from the blow, but managed to stagger out the round. Marcus butted Gizzy's left eye in the final round and the blood streamed down the Battler's face, but he tore right in and mauled Marcus around the ring. The decision was unanimous.

Davy Grove, of the North Side, 147¼, won handily over rugged Young Rudy, of Charleroi, 146¾, in the eight-round semi-final, having Rudy on the floor for a nine count in the third round. Grove looked very good in winning, using short, jolting blows to the midsection that had Rudy in trouble several times.

General Burr, Negro welterweight, of Aliquippa, defeated Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, in the second bout of six rounds. Charley Burns, a newcomer, from St. Michael, Pa., won over Sammy Paris, Hill featherweight, in a good opening bout.

It was announced that Johnny Datto and Lew Massey, of Philadelphia, will box the main bout at the arena next Friday night.

Thiel Team Loses To Temple Owls

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Temple Owls soared over Thiel College's plucky eleven for a 31-to-0 opening game victory before nearly 12,000 persons last night at the Temple Stadium.

Lew Whittock, veteran quarterback led the Cherry and White's scoring parade with two long touchdown runs from double passes early in the first period. Whittock took the ball from Ed Zukas and was off on a 30-yard scamper that ended at the goal line. In the third quarter after receiving the ball from Joe Kostrava, raced an even 60 yards.

The lineup:

THIEL—0.		TEMPLE—31.
Fuehr	L.E.	Gudo
George	L.T.	Klinger
Stelzer (C)	L.G.	Smith
Beiserling	C.	Lipsel
Mann	R.G.	D. Rubin
Elwood	R.T.	C. Rubin
Lowther	R.E.	Geston
Snyder	Q.B.	(C) Whittock
Tomenko	L.H.	Kilcoyne
Schenick	R.H.	E. Zukas
McClure	F.B.	Kostrava

Score by periods:

Temple	12	6	6	21

Touchdowns: Whittock 2, Kostrava, Sukas, Stevens. Extra points: Whittock (placements). Referee, Cromwell, Swarthmore. Umpire, A. W. Palmer, Colby. Head linesman, Jonas Ingram, Navy. Field judge, E. E. Miller, Penn State.

NO. 261

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing an Agreement between the Carnegie Institute and the City of Pittsburgh for the purchase of steam for heating purposes at the Phipps Conservatory, and stipulating terms of payment therefor.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh are hereby authorized and empowered to execute an Agreement with the Carnegie Institute for the purchase of steam for heating purposes at the Phipps Conservatory, which agreement shall be as follows:

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT

MADE the — day of ———, 1932, between the Carnegie Institute (hereinafter called the "Institute"), a corporation of Pennsylvania having its place of business in the City of Pittsburgh, party of the first part, and the City of Pittsburgh (hereinafter called the "City"), a municipal corporation of Pennsylvania located in the County of Allegheny, party of the second part;

WHEREAS—The Institute owns and operates a boiler plant situate on property in the Fourteenth Ward, Pittsburgh, in which it generates the steam for use in its buildings, and the City owns and operates a public conservatory known as the Phipps Conservatory, located in Schenley Park in the City of Pittsburgh near the Institute, in which it uses steam for heating purposes, and the City desires to purchase from the Institute all steam to be used in the Phipps Conservatory, and the Institute is willing to sell such steam to the City without profit to the Institute;

NOW THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH, That in consideration of the premises, it is agreed between the parties as follows:

FIRST: The City agrees to construct, maintain and operate at its own cost and expense a pipe line for transportation of steam to the Phipps Conservatory from the boiler plant of the Institute, and also a hot water return line from the Conservatory to the boiler plant, and to connect the lines so constructed with the steam plant of the Institute at points to be designated by the Institute. When said pipe lines have been completed and connected with the plant of the Institute, the City will purchase from the Institute and the Institute agrees to furnish and sell to the City all steam necessary for the operation of the Phipps Conservatory, such steam to be purchased at the point of connection between the line so installed by the City and the present plant of the Institute.

SECOND: The City shall install and maintain at a point agreeable to the Institute, such meters or other measuring devices which may be necessary, from time to time, to measure accurately the steam transferred and delivered from the boiler plant to the line to be installed by the City as aforesaid. Such meters or measuring devices shall be read monthly by the Institute to determine the quantity of steam furnished by the Institute to the City. The City shall have the right to examine and check the meters or measuring devices and the readings thereof at any time. The cost of installation and maintenance of the meters or other measuring devices shall be paid by the City.

THIRD: For the period ending December 31, 1933, the City shall pay to the Institute the sum of twenty-five (25c) cents for each 1000 pounds of steam so furnished which the parties agree is the estimated reasonable cost to the Institute for that period for the generation of such steam without profit to the Institute.

AFTER December 31, 1933, the City shall pay the Institute for the steam so furnished, the actual cost to the Institute for the generation of steam based on the proportion that the steam furnished to the City bears to all the steam produced and used from the present or any future plant of the Institute. The actual cost of generating the steam shall include all charges of the steam generating plant of the Institute for labor, fuel, compensation and boiler insurance, water treatment, maintenance, supplies, replacements and repairs.

THE CITY shall also pay to the Institute in addition to the actual cost charge or the estimated reasonable cost, as above set forth, the additional sum of twenty (20c) cents per 1000 pounds of steam so furnished to cover depreciation of the plant of the Institute which sum the parties agree is a fair and reasonable charge for such depreciation without profit to the Institute.

IT IS FURTHER agreed, however, that if after December 31, 1933, by reason of increased capacity and improved equipment of the steam generating plant of the Institute, it should appear that the charge of twenty (20c) cents per 1000 pounds of steam to cover depreciation is in excess of or below a fair depreciation charge, the depreciation charge above set forth shall be increased or diminished in an amount to be agreed upon by the parties hereto.

BILLS FOR the steam so furnished to the City shall be rendered to it by the Institute on or about the first day of each month for steam delivered during the preceding month, and shall be paid by the City on or before the twentieth day of the month in which such bills are rendered.

FOURTH: This agreement shall continue for the period expiring December 31, 1933, and thereafter from year to year, until terminated by either party by six months' notice in writing of its intention so to do.

FIFTH: The Institute shall incur no liability for failure to furnish steam to the City if such failure be due to any cause other than its own gross negligence.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, this agreement is signed and executed for the Carnegie Institute by its President and Secretary, and for the City of Pittsburgh by Charles H. Kline, Mayor, and Edward G. Lang, Director of the Department of Public Works, the day and year first above written, and the common and corporate seals are duly affixed hereto.

2 WRITERS DIE IN SUICIDE PACT

PARIS, Oct. 1.—(INS.)—Believed victims of a suicide pact, two American writers—lifelong friends—were found dead in an artist's studio today.

The victims were George Denevers, who was born in Chicago on September 20, 1889, and John Mathews, whose home address was not known to police.

The bodies were found with the wrists slashed. Police believed the men had been dead for at least 10 days.

Detectives investigating the tragedy inclined to the theory that poverty was responsible.

Huckster Knocked From Wagon Dies

John Golon, 60, of 1917 Sidney street, a huckster knocked from his wagon when it was struck by a motor truck Wednesday, at Fifth and Sixth avenues, died early today in Mercy Hospital. Abe Schusterman, of 1211 North Euclid avenue, driver of the truck was to appear before the Coroner today.

John Faro, 35, of 223 Sandusky street, was treated at Allegheny General Hospital for laceration incurred early today when he was struck by a hit-run motorist in East General Robinson street.

VALENTINE

Captivating Story of a Shy Girl Rushed Into Love

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Millie Offers Costly Gifts But Val Dislikes to Accept Them

CHAPTER XXXVI.

They went into Millie's room. A hotel room transformed into a bower with Millie's own crepe de chine sheets, Millie's own hand-quilted tea-rose coverlet, and flowers and fruit and novels, and at least six varieties of candy boxes.

Millie waved in the general direction of the candy. "Have some. Take some home with you!"

Val chose a large, satiny chocolate filled with a mixture of cream and jam.

Millie watched her hungrily. She said, "Deemie gets me the stuff because he knows I love it. But I can't eat it. I let him think I do, but the maids carry it away. I can't eat anything I like. I'm—I'm practically starving!"

Millie's eyes overflowed with easy tears.

"Why, Millie — Millicent, I mean!" Val began.

"Don't call me Millicent. I've always hated the name. I simply went in for it because poor Vincent, who couldn't help being a snob being nobody himself, was so class conscious he thought [illegible] sounded like a bar maid. I, he should know! He knew about barmaids, and bars!"

She began to laugh, her old bubbling laughter, and the tears miraculously dried.

SUFFERED FOR BEAUTY

Val still looked anxious. "But why can't you eat, Mil—Millie? You aren't sick?

"Darling, you're the perfect little sober sides! Of course, I'm not sick! Aren't I young and radiant looking? My measurements are perfect, too. But, of course, I have to keep them that way, and Dr. Schweiss keeps me on this diet . . . do you mind shutting that box? I hate to look at things I can't eat.

"What I've suffered for my looks! Yes, really. I had a complete skin peeling—but look, isn't it lovely again? Oh, I tell you, you have to work for beauty, Val. Of course, you don't now, but you will later. And look what it got me? He's worth millions, Val—millions."

"I wouldn't care for money," Val said. "I wouldn't care a thing for money.

"Don't be silly. Didn't you write me your own self that you thought you'd die trying to learn to cook? Look at me! I don't cook! Of course, I can't eat, either," she began to laugh, merrily. "That does spoil my argument a little, but money does make a difference, Val. I've got it now, and I'm living—for the first time in all my life—"

"Why, you had everything in Santa Barbara! Millie, you had that wonderful place, and you gave me wonderful presents—"

HARD TO UNDERSTAND

"Val, I asked you not to bring that up. That will always remain a tragic chapter in my life, and one that I will never mention — never. Vincent Shalor took advantage of my poverty and inexperience—you see, if I hadn't been poor I wouldn't have got myself in that mess and he promised to take care of me until we could be married."

"You said you liked him," Val put in stubbornly. She couldn't understand Millie, sometimes. The things that often seemed to mean the most to her at other times she called nothing—or less than nothing.

"Like him? Of course! He was a likeable enough creature. But thoroughly good for nothing . . . thought for a time that by sticking to him, showing him that he could rise above all that, that I might do something for him. But I found that it was too late in his life. His habits were fixed. So all my sacrifice was for nothing."

She smiled, a wistful little smile, and Val waited to hear what the sacrifice was, and when Millie did not say, she asked.

"What? What SACRIFICE? My darling child, my whole life with him was tragedy! Do you realize what I suffered, having to be pleasant to those—those CREATURES he brought to the house? These—these cheap, loose women! Val, when I think of it—when I just THINK of it."

She began to pace the floor, wringing her long, lovely hands.

"Well you used to say you liked them, too. I was the one that couldn't stand them!"

Millie stopped her pacing. For a moment Val thought she was going to be very angry, but instead she began to laugh, and she went over and kissed Val, and laughed some more and said:

RETURNED TO WIFE

"Sometimes you're so much like your father I'm afraid to kiss you, lest I get cut on whiskers. He was one of those lazy ones—hated to shave . . . oh, dear! What WERE we talking about? Oh, those creatures of Vincents. Really, darling, it was terrible.

"Now I, as Vincent's fiancee, lived in the house he gave to me, naturally, and of course, he did take care of me. It was entirely his wish. I suppose there were those who dared to think . . . well, people do think, of course. But all that put me in that miserable position of having to receive all his play-boy friends, with their common girl friends, and Vincent, who could have spared me all that, and insisted upon me having my proper place, as his fiancee—"

"Did his wife divorce him, finally?"

"That woman? No, and he went right back to her! Right back after moving heaven and earth to get away, and all because that girl of his was coming out, and he wanted her to get the right start! Really—when I think of it—"

"But, Millie, you can't be engaged to a man who is married!"

"Of course, you can! It's done all the time in Hollywood—and all over. Don't be so old-fashioned. Heavens, let's not talk about it any more. It's all over, thank goodness. And now that I had the courage to break away, and begin again, I have my good, gentle Deems, and the life of the spirit."

Well, if all this luxury is the life of the spirit, I think I'd like it, too, Val thought, but she didn't dare to say it, because sometimes Millie didn't like things to be laughed about, though she herself laughed at everything—look, Val, do you like pajamas? These are some I got at Cartier's—no, that's the jeweler—well, some place in Paris. You can have them . . . where is the dress I got for you? Oh, I know—wait—"

Millie was ploughing through trunks, murmuring "That girl has no more system than a . . .

She pulled it out at last, one of those absurdly simple "little wool" tailored dresses that look almost inexpensive, and are marvels of line and cut and color. This one was black and there was a gay twisted scarf of queer dull silks that went with it, and a smart, exquisitely soft little hat.

"Oh, Millie—just what I've longed for! Though the things you gave me last year are so much grander than anyone else has that I don't get much use of them."

"Wear, them, anyway," said Millie practically, trying the hat at a new angle, and proffering a pair of antique amethyst and pearl earrings at the same time.

"And Millie—"

"Here's the diamond bracelet—you see it's very simple. You can wear that anywhere."

Val looked at the circlet of winking, limpid stones.

"Millie, they're so beautiful! Everything's so beautiful. I just don't know what to say—but Millie, truly I haven't any place to wear all these beautiful things. You'd better keep them."

Millie sat down on the nearest sofa. "I know. If that isn't life? You have the things and you have not any place to wear them. Or else you haven't them, and you have places—"

"That's the way it is with me. You give me all these beautiful things, but truly I haven't any place to wear them! The places we go—"

Millie raised a warning finger. Val stopped talking. Millie tiptoed to the door, listened.

"Asleep," she whispered. She made a little face.

"Never mind," she said in her natural voice. "Things can't go on this way forever. We'll have our day yet—you and I—"

Synopsis

Valentine Macfarlane is practically deserted at the age of 8 by her gay, widowed mother, Millie. She is brought up by a manhating maiden aunt, Julia, and becomes a stenographer. After a brief infatuation for the dashing Lester Sherwood, she marries a neighbor boy, Joe Carey, and goes to Minneapolis, where Joe is an architect. Val knows little about housekeeping or cooking. To return favors of a neighbor woman, Mrs. Peacock, Val and Joe plan a dinner. They also invite Pearl Neely, a friend of Joe's. Pearl begins to take liberties about the apartment. Val disapproves, but says nothing. Val visits Millie at a hotel in a nearby city. Val is surprised when she sees the frail, old man her mother married.

Now Go On

"We'll have our day yet—you and I—" said Val.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Grateful for Madge's Attention to Arlens

Philip Veritzen was so effusive in his greetings, so profuse in his thanks for what he termed my "wonderful graciousness," that there came again into my mind the conjecture that he might have decided to offer himself in matrimony to Mrs. Arlen, the attractive widow of his best friend whose willingness for such a termination to her widowhood was only too apparent.

It was a conjecture which, to my intense annoyance—for it is not pleasant to contemplate one's own meanness of spirit—was not particularly welcome to me. True, there was not the slightest vestige of romance in my association with the great producer. Indeed, there was less than friendship, because I so often was irritated by his behavior toward Noel and Mary, and by the recollection of his outrageous behavior at the last year's Christmas celebration.

But no woman, unless she possesses superhuman qualities, enjoys seeing a man give to any other woman the devoted admiration which in the past he has offered to her.

Whatever the source of his gratification, his effusive expression of it began to be tiresome as well as embarrassing, and I was grateful indeed to Lillian when, with the freedom of her old friendship with him, she spoke as I never could have done.

LILLIAN EXPLAINS

"Tin the thanks for awhile, Phil!" she advised him airily. "We can't digest 'em all at once. Has Madge told you what she and Dicky have planned?"

"I haven't had any of the details," he returned, a bit stiffly, and I guessed that his dignity had been a trifle upset by Lillian's brusqueness. "I only know that she is giving a dinner dance for about thirty guests in honor of Mrs. Arlen and her daughter."

"Then, Madge, spoon the lentils," she commanded. 'They're a nifty dish."

But I shook my head. "You can describe things so much better," I told her with a significant, appealing glance that she heeded.

"Thanks for the broccoli," she said. "Lend me your ears, Phil; or no, just open 'em. You'll need 'em."

He smiled at her nonsense, then listened attentively as she outlined our plan of throwing the living room and dining room together—they were separated by doors that could on emergency be removed—and transforming them into the semblance of a night club with small tables around the sides, upon which the dinner would be served in "progressive" courses, with changes of partners at every course, and a space for dancing the length of the rooms left between the tables.

"Splendid," he ejaculated. "I can just imagine these wonderful old rooms transformed. And miraculously this just fits in with something I want to do for the party. It's for my friends, you know, and you simply must let me share."

SUGGESTS REVUE

"Don't worry on that score, Phil," Lillian said drily: "Madge may not be a golddigger, but I'm the gal who started the fashion, and I'm horning in on this party enough to declare that all big favors will be thankfully received. So trot out your ideas. I really have to slip it to you, Phil. You do have some nifties, sometimes."

I do not believe there is any one in the world, save Lillian, who dares treat Philip Veritzen with such offhand freedom. He not only takes her gibing meekly, but in most instances appears to enjoy her flings at him.

"No night club is complete without a revue of some kind," he said. "I should so like to provide a miniature one for your party; not too elaborate, or too long, for, of course, the young people won't want anything to interfere too much with their dancing."

"Be your age, Phil; or rather, don't be it," Lillian admonished. "Have you observed this modern generation at a party? Except for the two or three girls who generally grab most of the attention and want to exhibit their conquests, they aren't keen on dancing all the evening, the way we used to be. They're too darned lazy, in my opinion. What you're proposing will simply knock 'em cold.

"Is it permitted to ask what you are planning, or are you going to dance in, waving your hands and caroling 'Surprise! Surprise!'"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The members of the Plaza Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, at their regular meeting today were entertained by the Mamaux Rhythm Boys' String Orchestra, which is well known in Bloomfield.

In addition to the orchestra, the youngsters were entertained by "Honey" Menta, who, after dancing, offered to teach any or all of the audience the rudiments of dancing, so now the members of this chapter have their own dancing school. Miss Mente hopes that in about four weeks she will be able to stage a small revue for the members. Following the dancing school, the stage was cleared and a fast and snappy revue closed the program. The revue was staged and directed by Jack Berry.

No matter what the weather might be, the younger generation takes to ice cream cones like ducks to water, consequently Manager Earl Roeser, of the Cameraphone Chapter surprised the members when they arrived at the theater this morning by presenting each with a great big multi-colored cone.

Catherine O'Neill offered a difficult acrobatic dance and Rosemary Dodson followed with a military tap. Ernie Alvin then sang "Say It Isn't So" and ended with an encentric dance, which brought rounds of applause from the youngsters in the audience.

TO ENTERTAIN PATIENTS

Eddie Johns, manager of the Arsenal Theater, announced that the members who entertained today would entertain the patients at the Marine Hospital Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

Those taking part in the Arsenal program today were: Jean Lesnick, Betty Richards, Shirley Berger, Freda Berger, Leonra Crowley, Francis Ciancio Adeline Ciancio and Gresham McGuire.

The battle of music at the Schenley Theater again proved the "hit" of the program and brought many a laugh from the members, especially when the soloists competed against one another. Imagine, if you can, one singing a love ballad a la Rudy Valle and the other imitating Cab Calloway and his "Minnie the Moocher." Lots and more laughs at the way these boys got tangled and the various musical notes struck.

Many of the new members liked the activities and entertainment so much that they attended today's meetings with their "pals" who were also enrolled into the club.

Tender Solicitude

Leniency to Election Crooks Leaves the Public Cynical. Brief Comments on Local News.

In view of the tender solicitude shown for ballot box crooks in the local courts, the people of Allegheny County will not be impressed, we suspect, by laudation of the judiciary from any source. The public's reaction to the paroling of election swindlers affiliated with the corrupt Republican machine, before they had served a day in prison, is expressed in cynicism.

Election cheating is a deadly thrust into the very heart of democratic government. It deprives the people of the privilege of choosing their own officials, it robs them of the right of self-government, the most precious of our liberties. When the crooks try to steal an election after having been repeatedly warned, and in full knowledge that the community is very much concerned that the voting shall be honest, what possible excuse can be offered for them?

*Through forged tax receipts, registration of phan-*toms, ballot box stuffing, false returns and every other method known to the political gangster, the people of Allegheny County have been cheated in their elections year after year. Last year it was said grimly and determinedly that cheating must stop. District Attorney Andrew T. Park has given loyal aid in carrying out that determination, but the judiciary's attitude has been disappointing.

Some of the local judges owe their election to the corrupt political gang with which the election crooks are connected. Of course it would be embarrassing for them to preside in such cases or, in the event of conviction, to impose jail sentences. Then, too, there is the possibility that, if they did do their duty, the gang would turn against them when they came up for re-election, and cause their defeat.

To spare the local judges embarrassment visiting judges from other counties have sometimes been called upon to preside in election fraud cases—a bad policy, because, as they do not come before the citizens of Allegheny County for election, these outside judges cannot be held to account by the local voters for their conduct. There should be no more such shifting of responsibility.

One of our minor judges, Magistrate John J. Sweeney, laid himself open to the charge of favoritism yesterday when he granted a request for a secret hearing in the case of a policeman's wife, charged with shooting her husband. Court proceedings should be open and above board. There is too much opportunity for injustice in star chamber sessions.

The city administration has been placed in an awkward position by the Pressed Steel Car Company's threat to go into court if its bid for a safety railing contract, the lowest bid submitted, is rejected. The Department of Public Works made a mistake in calling for "Hunter Safety Railing," thus offering the Hunter Company a monopoly of the business.

The city administration, one might have thought, would have learned a lesson from the experience of former Director of Supplies Bertram L. Succop, who got into trouble by asking for bids for particular brands of food by name, instead of merely stating in the specifications the qualities and requirements to which the desired goods must conform.

*Of course Director Edward G. Lang, of the De-*partment of Public Works, may point out that the "Hunter Safety Railing" is a patented product and that no other railing could conform to its specifications without patent infringement. But it seems probable, nevertheless, that without sacrificing safety, a good railing could be obtained, more cheaply, by offering other companies besides the Hunter Company a chance to get the contract.

Has your automobile been inspected? If it does not bear the official sticker on the windshield you may get into trouble; for the period in which the inspection was to be made ended at midnight and the state highway patrolmen have been instructed to arrest the drivers of unmarked cars. The inspection requirement was no hardship, and conduces to safety.

Capt. D. E. Miller, commander of Troop B, State Highway Patrol, calls attention to something that it is well for motorists to know. He points out that even if a car does bear the official "inspected and approved" label, and nevertheless fails to come up to the requirements of the test, the owner may be called to account by the police. The auto must be in safe mechanical condition at all times.

The city faces the prospect of beginning the new year with a deficit of more than $1,000,000, and it is stated the employes will have to continue to take furlough and to return to the treasury the equivalent of two months' pay. It is regrettable, but they will be no worse off than most persons privately employed.

The sacrifices demanded of city employes are a fresh reminder that the County Commissioners, judges and other highly-paid county officials have not seen fit as yet to relinquish any part of their salaries as a contribution to the relief to the suffering taxpayers.

*Postoffice Inspector George V. Craighead is retir-*ing from the public service after 40 years of praiseworthy work. He has been a conspicuous protector of the public, and no doubt has saved the people millions of dollars by his activity in suppressing schemes to defraud and prosecuting the swindlers. Pittsburgh will be lucky to get another inspector as capable as Craighead.

*You have seen many pictures of the Golden Tri-*angle, no doubt, but never a more striking one than the aerial view which will be presented in the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph tomorrow. It was taken by a staff photographer from one of the United States Army bombing planes which maneuvered over Pittsburgh recently. A photograph showing the progress that has been made in the building of the new East Liberty Presbyterian Church is also noteworthy.

How ancient Athens got rid of its untrustworthy leaders is the subject of a timely article in the American Weekly, to be distributed as a supplement tomorrow with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Another interesting article, beautifully illustrated, describes some novel seaside sports that were popular on the beaches this year.

Now You See It, Now You Don't!

By Nelson Harding

Watch the Professor, Uncle Sam,
And watch that magic wand,
Or all the bankroll you'll get back
Will be the rubber band!

That patter the magician chants
Is merely to deceive
And keep you mystified the while
Your roll is taking leave.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Passing the Paprika

The three most thrilling moments in a woman's life, says Reno Ruth, are when the man says, "I love you," when the preacher says, "I pronounce you—," and when the judge says, "Granted!"

* * *

A man can always make a fool of a woman who loves him—but, somehow, he feels cheated when she beats him to it, by making a fool of HERSELF.

It isn't so often presence of mind as absence of enthusiasm, which enables a man to drive perfectly with one arm, while he pets casually with the other.

The perspective which a girl gets on a man, during the separation for the summer vacation, may lend him a brand new enchantment or may just reduce him to a "fade-out," according to whether it was love or only an infatuation.

When a man has watched his poor, starving wife picking at her reducing diet and seen his practically naked daughter lying on the beach, he sometimes wonders why he should give money to feed and clothe the heathen.

Almost any pretty woman can catch a man's eye or capture his fancy; but once a woman has the skill and subtlety to get into a man's IMAGINATION, no other woman can ever crowd her out.

No modern man can understand why a girl should want to corner ALL his affections. He takes for granted that she should be perfectly delighted with a part-time love and a sort of cooperative interest in his evenings.

As a striking example of a slow-motion picture, the screen might show us a cross-section of the average man's mind, while he is making it up, to let a woman love him.

Apparently, in a wandering husband's opinion, woman's favorite indoor sport is sitting at home, waiting to forgive him.

Isn't It So?

The best intelligence test is getting rich quick.

A luxury is something you go without necessities to get.

Nowadays the son who follows his father's footsteps is likely to wind up in the cellar.

Most people have a far greater capacity for accomplishment than they ordinarily exercise.

EUROPE DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The perpetual flurries of life swirling around the terrasse of the Cafe de la Paix make it, for many visitors, the most interesting spot in Paris—a glorified town pump. This morning, from the second of its four rows of green-topped, brass-bound tables, I watched the human flow.

Near the curb are overlapping rows of leafy maples, pebbling splotches of sunshine on the wide boulevard. A rachitic blind man, led by a half-blind woman, blew "Madelon" on a penny tin whistle. Sandwich men with ladder-like signs edged the gutters. Trembling map sellers. American and Berlin newsboys.

Now and then chasseurs with hand sprinklers allay ever rising clouds of dust. A hot-diggedy, quaintly hipped, lad in purple pants, light coat and rouge smirks by. A jet black Senegalese. Dull-eyed women harnessed to carts. And in and out, darting lizard-like Fleurette, one-legged cocotte and her famous white crutches.

Cafe de la Paix waiters pay 100 francs a week—$4—to hold their jobs. In prosperous times they average 500 francs a week, or $20. Just now they have to work fast to make their deposit. The place opens at sunup and usually closes an hour after midnight, unless trade is brisk.

While it is popularly supposed to be strictly a tourist rendezvous, it's thoroughly Parisian, indeed, the mid-town gossip fount. Like a stone cast in a lake, so does rumor starting there vibrate widening rings of hearsay. It's where Paris hears of its stage scandals, of rich ladies and other tid-bits.

Gilbert White was putting finishing touches on a lovely portrait of the equally lovely Clare Luce when we stepped into his studio in scholarly rue Jadin, this morning. White, with flowing locks to his shoulders, wide black hat and smock, is the artist we picture but so seldom see. It's difficult to imagine he was once on Oklahoma sheriff. Talk turned to Coolidge and why he never came to Paris. Gilbert's deft brush poised in mid-air to observe: "French cooking might spoil his taste for prunes."

* * *

From a Ritz window, I can see the glass roof of the pied-a-terre atop Ivar Kreuger's Bank de Suede aet Paris—a grandiose house of cards which becomes a mausoleum for a million high hopes. Opposite the house of Morgan in fashionable Place Vendome, it was to have the most elaborate facade in the quarter. The lobby, in Lalique flutings, shows a mural of a goddess with a flaming match in the manner of Liberty lighting the world. All work stopped with his suicide. The front is a criss cross of pine boards. A sullen concierge sits puffing a pipe inside the doorway. Kreuger gypped him, too, of his all. Incidentally all Paris insists Kreuger is alive and a wax dummy was buried. Only the police saw the remains.

In France and all over Europe there is a noticeable absence of men between the ages of 35 and 47. Young as well as elderly ladies must either dine, dance, go to the theater or otherwise be squired about by the callow youth or the middle-aged. Thousands killed in the war made the gap.

* * *

A constant titter in the American colony—said to have been fostered by Cole Porter—is the appearance in the English speaking newspapers of items concerning "Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Fitch and their daughter, Sonia." Once or twice a week, paragraphs appear of them being received here and there, entertaining at dinner, tea and the opera. Whether the newspapers know the deception, or are merely being duped, is not known; but the canard is a topic wherever Yanks gather. And two revues have interpolated dandy lyrics about Miss Sonia Fitch.

I ran into the luminous-eyed Joan Crawford in a Place Vendome reception room of the Ritz today. In a true continental curtesy—with my wife and young Doug looking on, of course—I kissed her hand. (Get me away from home and I lose entire control of myself.) Miss Crawford was in a creation of Prussian blue touched with jets of flaming red, and chic-er than any Parisian lady I've seen. Vive la Hollywood!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"How can I live, now that he is gone?"

"What is there left in life, with my darling dead?"

Have those terrible questions come to you? Thank God, if they haven't. Be grateful if your world is still complete.

For thousands walk beside you whose world will never be whole again — those pitiful thousands whom death has robbed. They are almost another race. Half alive, half dead, they move amongst the happy, careless living, performing tasks that have no meaning, waking to dawns that hold no hope.

They are the loneliest people on earth—those whom death has robbed. They speak a language the happy ones cannot understand. They have looked upon a mystery and an agony the happy ones cannot even imagine. And rarely does any one stop to listen to their desperate cry: "How can I go on?"

And so today this article is not for you who are still whole. It is for those whom death has cut in two. It is the answer, the true answer, to their question. And the answer is:

YOU CAN GO ON! (I know, for I am one of you.)

YOU CAN GO ON!

YOU MUST GO ON!

You are not branded. You are not bankrupt. Life has not lost its meaning.

LIFE HAS A MEANING FOR YOU NOW THAT IT NEVER HAD BEFORE.

YOU HAVE A CERTAIN WORK TO DO THAT YOU NEVER HAD BEFORE.

Why are you suffering? Because you loved. Because you dared to stake ALL your happiness on love.

Others were more cautious, more selfish. They did not stake everything they had on love. They scattered their affections; safeguarded their hearts and lives against such catastrophe. But you gave all you had. And now—it's gone! And what is there left?

ALL THE LOVE YOU EVER HAD IS LEFT!

THE GRAVE CANNOT KILL LOVE; NOR CAN TEARS TARNISH IT!

You are not ashamed of that love, are you? Even in the face of this desolation you do not regret it, do you? You would not let anyone tell you that it was a foolish love, or urge you to forget, or tempt you to say you're sorry. No! If you had it to do all over again you would still love him, or love her, just as recklessly, just as gloriously, wouldn't you?

THEN PROVE IT!

LIVE YOUR PRIDE!

Live as though that dear dead one were still beside you, watching, wondering, whispering, wistfully: "Are you still so sure, beloved? Still so sure that I was worth all this?"

Answer that whisper! Answer it as you would answer it if you could see those yearning eyes, that gentle mouth. You would not deny them in life. Then do not deny them now.

Answer that whisper with pride! Answer it with laughter! Answer it with courage!

ANSWER IT BY LIVING SO BEAUTIFULLY THAT EVERY ACT OF YOUR LIFE WILL BE A MEMORIAL TO A LOVE THAT CANNOT DIE!

And then—what! Is that all the comfort you can hope for—just that brave show before the world? What of the terrible hours when you are alone?

Their terror will pass.

IF YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO STAND BY LIFE, LIFE WILL STAND BY YOU.

IF YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO SAY THAT LOVE CAN NEVER DIE, LOVE WILL PROVE IT.

IF YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO FACE DEATH, DEATH WILL FLEE BEFORE YOU.

And the darkness will lighten. And the veil will lift.

And you will SEE, you will KNOW, that life and love GO ON!

Putting the Farmer 'On the Spot'

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The persistence of Senator Capper in the old line of campaign bunk cannot be ascribed to age as in the case of Mr. Curtis. It is easier to ascribe his absurdities to a sense of humor. What could otherwise explain his proof that the Hoover acceptance speech is one of the most statesmanlike the world has known with the statement that "Mark Sullivan, the historian and political writer, finds nothing like it in all our history."

How Mr. Sullivan, who has a good sense of humor and enjoys a joke, must have chuckled!—he who is the minister without portfolio in the administration and who habitually spends his weekends at Rapidan as a member of the kitchen cabinet.

But it is not so easy to be patient with Senator Capper's zealous support of the last two administration's attitude toward agriculture. No one owes more to the farmers than he. He publishes a farm paper which has an enormous circulation and, in all conscience, he ought to stand up and battle for the farmers' interests instead habitually of being an apologist of the system which has reduced them to ruin.

We here challenge Senator Capper to discuss in the next issue of his paper the amazing statement just sent out by the administration in reference to loans made the farmers.

A Rather Remarkable Plan

These statements are sent out to men who may purchase farmers' crops or have dealings with them in reference to the $65,000,000 loaned them by the government. Billions have been loaned to banks, railroads and great corporations in the process of financing the financiers out of the public funds. We are not objecting to this financing of the banks and railroads—we are merely stating a fact.

It is common knowledge that, in at least one instance the money loaned a railroad was used to pay a great bank, which found it more comfortable to close the account with the taxpayers' money than to renew the loan, as it amply was able to do. It is also generally understood of a billion dollars loaned to Big Business will never be paid back; and the money lost will be replaced by the taxation of the people to that amount. But we do not object to that. It is worth a billion if its loss will prevent a more serious crash than we yet have had.

All this is called to mind merely to emphasize the different attitude of the administration toward money loaned to the farmers. It wants that money back. It proposes to get it back. And in this statement sent out to men who deal with farmers it sets forth a rather remarkable plan for getting it back.

The Farmers' Misfortunes Are Being Proclaimed

The loans were made on a promissory note secured by a first mortgage or first lien upon all crops growing, or to be planted and produced, this year. The administration writes men who deal with farmers that:

"These mortgages are of record in the various counties which recordation constituting due legal notice to all buyers of these mortgaged crops that the said Secretary of Agriculture has a first claim to the proceeds thereof."

But the administration is not content to inform these prospective purchasers that the mortgages are recorded; before me as I write is a full list in one state sent out from Washington. The necessities of the farmers are thus being advertised. Their misfortunes are being proclaimed. And so the Hoover administration writes:

"For the convenience of purchasers of crops, and other interested parties lists of these loans by counties have been prepared, and there is attached hereto a list of loans made to farmers in the county in which you are operating. Should you need a list of any other county within your trade area, please advise us immediately and we shall send you such additional lists as you may require."

And so the unfortunate farmer, forced to make a loan to escape ruin, is "put upon the spot."

* * *

Europe Must Be 'Saved'

And what is the prospective purchaser of the fruits of the farmer's toil to do? He is asked, before making payment to the farmer, to consult this list.

If the man whose product he is buying is on the list, the purchaser is informed that he is "under the obligation to see that the purchase money is applied to the payment of the debt."

And then this:

"You should draw the check to the amount of the proceeds of that transaction in favor of the Secretary of Agriculture and forward such check directly to this office or deliver it to our authorized field inspector."

Which means that if he buys all the farmer has to sell he is to treat the farmer like a potential crook and send everything the farmer made to Washington.

Evidently there is to be no moratorium considered for the farmer. We cannot grant moratoriums to everyone, and Europe must be "saved."

Remembered—With An Insult

This applies to the cotton growers of the South and to the tobacco growers as well as the growers of grain and the producers of live stock. But the administration will take no such step to get back the billion it will lose in the financing of the banks and railroads. This will be 'canceled' in due time. And the farmer will be taxed to make up the loss.

The publicity given the farmer's misfortune and financial distress in the neighborhood where he lives and does business is in striking contrast to the Administration's bitter hostility to publicity on the necessities of the financiers.

The extraordinary means resorted to to make the farmer pay is in strange contrast with the lack of alertness or interest in the case of the greater loans.

But the insult is in the inference that the farmer is a dishonest man and cannot be trusted to pay his debt out of the proceeds of his toil if the money once gets into his hands.

He is to be humiliated by being refused the ordinary courtesy of getting the money for the sale of his product and writing his own check; the Administration which can trust the financiers won't trust the farmer; and the man who buys the farmer's wheat, cotton or tobacco will please ignore the person with whom he trades and send the money directly to Washington!

All of which is in keeping with the attitude of the present governmental regime toward the "forgotten men" of the farms, who, for once, are being remembered—with an insult.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

It is fine to have a hobby if you don't let it master you.

But when you neglect your family, your home, your church, your lodge, your civic obligations and everything else for your hobby, it has too strong a hold on you.

Perhaps you are spending more money for equipment for your hobby than for any other one project, thus making it your master.

If you indulge your hobby so extensively that it tires you to the point of nervous exhaustion, or physical and mental incapacity, it goes too far.

If it engrosses your mind so that you cannot consider or discuss other matters you are becoming a slave to your hobby.

If you are so absorbed in it that you are unmindful of other just demands upon you, you are giving it too much leeway.

Your hobby is something to enjoy, to make you relax, to rest you from your daily grind and as such is valuable.

When it makes you neglect your duties, it has gone too far.

When it takes everything from you and gives nothing in return but over-exertion and irritability, it is your master.

Control exercise of your hobby as you have to control yourself in other ways.
